Six Agencies Deny Interest In 'Quoddy' Plan for DPs

3 South American Embassies Shrug Off Deal Despite Claims by Cohen

By Marshall Andrews

Copyright, 1947, by The Washington Post

In a prospectus setting forth his plan for training 100,000 displaced persons at Quoddy Village, Me., Frank Cohen of New York, claims the backing of six Government agencies and three South American governments.

All six agencies deny any active interest in the scheme and embassies of two of the South American governments disclaim knowledge of the deal. The third appears to be acquainted with it, but vaguely.

Cohen's prospectus is a puzzling document. It is not dated, though it makes frequent reference to current and relative times. It is labeled "strictly confidential" but was handed out without comment by Cohen's publicity office in New York.

Plan 4000 a Month

The prospectus says Quoddy Village, built at a cost of $1,500,000 to house employes of the abortive Passamaquoddy tidal power project, is to be set up as a training center for DPs from the American zone in Germany for eventual resettlement in South America. Only families would be brought in, at the rate of 1000 families (4000 individuals) a month, until 25,000 families will have entered by June, 1948.

These DPs would be trained in 17 trades and skills, all of which are directly or indirectly involved with industrial projects with which Cohen is connected. Successful completion of the scheme would require the cooperation and aid of the City of Eastport, Me., the War Assets Administration, the State Department, the War Department, the Maritime Commission, the Treasury Department, the Immigration Service of the Department of Justice and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. No part of the program could be carried out unless all parts of it were.

Involves Donation

All these agencies have been approached, personally or by letter, by Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.), who has been acting as Cohen's agent here. Brewster has stated definitely that his only interest in the project is to retain Quoddy Village and make it a going concern.

WAA's part would be to sell Quoddy at 100 per cent discount (which is a euphemism for "donation") to Eastport as an addition to its educational facilities. Bids will be opened at Boston today.

Cooperative At Greenbelt Charges 'Fix'

Two House Probers 'Acted as Prosecutors,' G. C. S. Secretary Says

The House Small Business Subcommittee hearing on Greenbelt Consumer Services, Inc., was "definitely fixed" against the cooperative, an official of the corporation charged yesterday.

Francis J. Lastner, secretary of G.C.S., in a prepared statement, accused the majority of the committee members of prejudice and claimed they "had already made up their minds as to the outcome of the hearing before it started."

The three-man committee, by a vote of two to one, labeled the cooperative a monopoly at the close of hearings Saturday and called upon the Federal Housing Administration to "cancel" its contract with the organization.

Committee Methods Assailed

"These men," Lastner declared, referring to Representatives Walter C. Ploeser (R., Mo.) and R. Walter Riehlman (R., N. Y.) "acted as prosecutors rather than men trying to find out the facts." The third and dissenting member of the subcommittee was Representative Wright Patman (D., Tex.)

"The so-called impartial witnesses who testified for the prosecution were disgruntled former employes of the coop" and others who would "benefit by smashing of the coop."

He charged the final decision was rendered without "deliberation" and before "all the records and evidence" sought had been recorded.

FHA Defers Opinion

Yesterday, on Ed Hart's "Is Congress Doing Its Job?" over Radio Station WINX, Representative Ploeser denied he had approved a report issued by a House committee last year giving a clean bill of health to the Greenbelt cooperative. The report, issued by Representative Patman, then the chairman of the House Small Business Committee, dubbed the findings "unanimous."

Father Drowns In Saving Life Of Daughter

Alexandrian Sinks As Friend Pulls Girl, 10, Into Rowboat

An Alexandria father gave his life yesterday to save his 10-year-old daughter from drowning in the Potomac River near Mount Vernon.

The child was plucked from her submerged father's support by a friend, who also saved a second man from drowning in the river current.

Dead in the river outing tragedy was Robert M. Pigge, 32, of 213 Howell st., Alexaidria, a salesman and veteran of 23 months' overseas duty with the Army Engineers. His body did not rise to the surface after his valiant efforts to keep his daughter's head above the water.

Caught in Undertow

Saved were the daughter, Joyce Pigge, and a friend of the family, James Hoover, 24, of the Howell st. address.

Theey were brought safely to shore by Melvin Wood, 39, of 1725 Price st., Alexandria, who was swimming with the party near the Hawling Point Gunning Club, Fairfax County, three miles above Mount Vernon.

Wood said they were swimming in the river at noon yesterday. He said he was in shallow water with Pigge's 6-year-old son, George, when he heard cries for help.

"I thought they were joking, but I turned around and saw they were caught in the undertow, about 75 feet offshore," he declared.

Body Not Recovered

"I ran ashore with George, gave him to his mother, jumped into a rowboat and made after them," Wood said.

"I grabbed Hoover and then Joyce, just as she was going under. Pigge had her on his back, holding her up, but he had gone down. I didn't see him again."

The accident occurred near the Virginia shore, in Maryland waters. Dragging efforts of the Occoquan Rescue Squad did not locate the dead man's body.

3 GIs Freed In Korea By Russians

Teen-Age Soldiers Surrendered to U. S. In Good Shape; Held for 13 Days

Seoul, Korea, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—Three teen-aged American soldiers seized by the Russians along the thirty-eighth parallel and held incommunicado for 13 days have been released to an American officer "in excellent shape," an Army announcement said today.

The officer accepted the released men at 4:40 p. m. at Yohyon-Ni, on the border between the American and Soviet occupation zones where they were seized August 12 the Army announcement said.

The three soldiers were scheduled to be released at 10 a. m. but the Soviets did not arrive with them until 4 p. m. The transfer took about 40 minutes to complete.

Army authorities said the soldiers, all belonging to the Thirty-second Infantry Regiment of the Seventh Division, were brought to Seoul and would be questioned Monday after a night's rest.

Inspecting Telephone Line

The soldiers are Gerald F. Geffen, Port Chester, N. Y.; Thomas F. Puglsey, Renton, Wash., and John D. Hope, Seattle, Wash.

[At the time the Russians seized them, they were detailed to inspect the telephone line running from Seoul to Russian headquarters at Pyongyang. It was in the day time, and the men were in uniform, the Associated Press said.

[South Korean police who witnessed the incident said one of the Americans had a camera, and speculated that this might have been the reason the Russians held them.

[In disclosing the case eight days later, American authorities in Seoul said that at the time the Russians sent word for a U. S. officer and an interpreter to come and pick up the men, but when they arrived, the Russians said Soviet headquarters had ordered the three held for investigation.

[Subsequent demands for their release, including at least two communications from Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodge, U. S. commandant in southern Korea, drew the unvarying answer that an investigation was in progress and that the Russian commandant, Lieut. Gen. C. P. Korotkov, was personally handling it.

[On Saturday the Russians sent word that the men would be returned on Sunday.]

Hodges Says Russians Back Seditious Activity

Seoul, Korea (Monday) Aug. 25 (U.P.).—Lieut. Gen. John R. Hodges charged today that the Russian delegation to the United Nations-Soviet Joint Commission had encouraged north Korean politicians who were guilty of seditious activities aimed at destruction of the constituted government and law and order in the American zone."

Hodges, commander of United States forces in Korea and United States representative on the commission, said the Korean leftist leaders in question directly interfered with work of the joint commission.

Hodges' accusation was in reply ton an August 22 statement by Col. Gen. Terenty F. Shtikov who charged that Americans in Korea were carrying out "pogroms" against Koreans who were working to create a united provisional government for the country in accordance with the Moscow foreign ministers conference of 1945.

Indonesians Say Full-Scale War Raging

Strategic Town North of Capital Reported Under Heavy Dutch Attack

Belgium Asks Ruling

BELGIUM proposes that the International Court of Justice be asked to rule on the jurisdictional right of the United Nations to interfere in the Dutch-Indonesian dispute. The Belgians support Dutch contentions that the affair is an internal one. (Story on Page 3.)

Airfield Captured

Batavia, Java, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—The Indonesian Republic reported practically full-scale war going on in Java tonight, with the strategic road town of Amepl, 26 miles northeast of the Republican capital at Jogjakarta, under heavy attack by Dutch infantry and artillery.

That was one of the three large-scale attacks the Indonesians reported. They said Dutch artillery and infantry had attacked Pagerroejoeng, in the north coastal sector 26 miles southeast of Semarang, but had been driven off after heavy fighting.

In the eastern sector, Dutch troops with four tanks and air support, have taken Boegis airfield, 15 miles northeast of Malang the Indonesians reported.

The Indonesian communique did not say what the outcome of the battle at Ampel was. The communique said the Dutch had captured the villages of Koentjen and bandjarsari in the Ampel area and indicated they had taken the town of Tengaren, two miles to the northwest.

The only action the Dutch reported in the Salatiga sector was a machine gun and mortar assault on a Dutch patrol about four miles to the southwest. The Dutch said the Indonesians were driven off.

The Dutch reported Republican "activity" in west and central Java and said Dutch "mopping-up operations" continued in the east. The only Dutch casualty yesterday was reported as one man wounded.

Tropical Storm Hits Texas City; Damage Unknown

Galveston, Tex., Aug. 24 (A.P.).—Texas city, hit only last April by a terrific ship explosion disaster that claimed more than 500 lives was struck late today by a 68-mile-an-hour tropical storm that a few hours earlier raked Galveston with high winds and torrential rain.

P. J. Naughton, official in charge of the weather bureau here, said he had no knowledge of the amount of damage.

At least one life was lost in the storm in Galveston.

Three other persons were feared lost on a fishing boat that left Galveston Friday and sailed out into the Gulf of Mexico.

Cubs Reach Iceland On World Flight

New York, Aug. 24 (INS).—William Stroheier, flight manager, announced tonight the two Piper Cub round-the-world planes have landed at Meeks Field, Reykjavik, Iceland, from Greenland.

George Truman set down his City of the Angels at 5:46 p. m. EDT and Clifford V. Evans, jr., followed a moment later in the 1, Greenland, where they were City of Washington.

They took off from Bluie West held more than a week by inclement weather and attacks of influenza.

Flying Discs Appear Over Europe Now

Vienna, Austria, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—Authorities at the Semmering Mountain Meteorological Observatory reported tonight that they had sighted a big illuminated disc—apparently similar to the "flying discs" reported sighted over the northwest United States—in the skies above Austria, Friday night.

The disc disappeared over the horizon, the report said.

The Graz University observatory reported sighting a similar disc, which changed its course from the southeast to the northeast, flying over the British occupation zone of Austria.

Woman Parachutist In 12,100-Ft. Free Fall

Moscow, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—Elena Vladimirskaya, woman engineer at the Moscow Mechanical Institute, today fell 12,100 feet before opening her parachute in a jump from 23,260 feet. She was in the free fall for 61 seconds.

It was Elena's 282d jump. "Come back in a coupla days," she told reporters after landing. "I'm going even higher."

'Super Defenses'

Army and Navy Dig Caverns In New Mexico, Paper Says

Denver, Aug. 24 (A.P.).—The Denver Post reported last night in a copyright article that huge caverns are being dug under Army-Navy supervision in a mountain range not far from Albuquerque, N. Mex., as "super defenses against a possible World War III."

"This is not a revelation of military secrets," the Post said in the story from Albuquerque by Robert Fenwick, "because the general facts are known to many Albuquerque residents . . . Its presence is known to hundreds of commercial airline passengers who have flown over the diggings."

"Great excavations are under way beneath a mountain peak. Hundreds and reputedly thousands of men are at work there with ponderous machinery. Civilian pilots say that planes of the most modern war types, from jet pursuits to extra-long-range bombers, are standing near runways a short distance from the construction center."

There is a story, according to the Post, "that deep underneath the mountain range there is to be a large chamber, hewn from solid rock and then lined with concrete, asbestos and lead."

"There's word also about a 30-acre subterranean research laboratory, of conveyor belts running out of the boweis of the earth to deliver automatic bombs to the surface."

The Post said David E. Lilienthal, chairman of the United States Atomic Commission, told it by telephone last night "the Atomic Energy Commission has no such project as the one described."

In Albuquerque, Army and Navy officials were not available for comment.

In Washington the War Department said it was not able to confirm the report tonight. It added the Army-Navy Munitions Board has been "studying" such projects but dobuted actual digging had begun or that actual digging would be required in huge caverns such as Carlsbad, N. Mex.

Argentina Still Resists U. S. Treaty Stand

Opposes Collective American Action Against Attackers

Petropolis, Brazil, Aug. 24 (INS).—Argentina served notice tonight that she has not given in to the United States stand for an inter-American defense treaty that demands quick collective action against aggression—no matter what its source.

Dr. Paschal la Rosa, Argentine member of the aggression subcommittee, denied that Argentina had swung to the United States view, and said his delegation is rapidly winning over nations to its stand.

He chided the secretariat for issuing a communique urportedly on action taken by a five-nation group representing 14 of the 20 American republics participating in the metropolis peace talks.

U. S. Wants Uniformity

The communique issued last night, said:

"The sub-group tentatively reached agreement in principle on the fundamental question of inter-American solidarity in the sense that it esteemed that an armed attack by any state against an American state shall be considered as an attack against all.

"It also was tentatively agreed to interpret 'armed attack' as meaning any aggressive military operation with a security zone established for the hemisphere."

The communique was generally interpreted as evidence of Argentina's withdrawal from its demand for collective emergency action against extra-continental aggression, but careful inter-American consultations when attacks occurred from within the hemisphere.

The United States wants procedures for joint action to be uniform, no matter what the source of aggression.

Six Support Argentina

Dr. la Rosa said the following six countries already have pledged support to the Argentine stand: Brazil, Bolivia, Paraguay, Peru, Uruguay and Venezuela.

Dr. Enrique Corominas, secretary-general of the Argentine delegation, claimed that nine nations have swung behind Argentina leadership on the issue, and others are ready to fal linto line.

1-Shot Revolt Puts Ecuador Chief in Exile

Defense Minister Takes Over in Name Of Armed Forces

Quito, Ecuador, Aug. 24 (A.P.).—Dr. Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra was ousted as president today in a bloodless "single shot" revolution led by the Minister of Defense, Col. Carlos Mancheno, who assumed complete control of the government in the name of the country's armed forces.

An attempt by Velasco Ibarra to remove Mancheno as Defense Minister apparently led to the revolution, which caught most citizens of the capital by complete surprise.

Colonel Mancheno announced Velasco Ibarra's "resignation," and said the former President and his wife would be exiled to Colombia. It was from that country that 54-year-old Velasco Ibarra returned from exile in 1944 to assume the presidency after an uprising against the regime of Dr. Carlos Alberto Arroyo del Rio.

Guard Fires Once

Mancheno announced he would ask Jose Vicente Trujillo, chief of the Ecuadorean delegation to the hemispheric defense conference, to remain as Foreign Minister.

(At Quitandinha Trujillo declared he was returning immediately to Ecuador, since "I no longer represent a government here." He added that news of the coup was "a complete surprise.")

Velasco Ibarra was taken into custody late last night by a military group which went directly to the presidential palace.

The presidential guard fired one shot. Informed that the delegation of army officers wanted to call on the President, the guard offered no resistance.

History Repeats

The President was taken to an army barracks. There the group, headed by a Major Baquero and Captains Larrea and Holguin, demanded his resignation. Velasco Ibarra insisted on seeing Colonel Mancheno, and he was received at the latter's barracks with "full honors."

At 3:30 a. m., Colonel Mancheno announced that Velasco Ibarra had resigned with this statement:

"Jose Maria Velasco Ibarra, Constitutional President of the republic, for the sake of the republic, to

Athens Is Uneasy As Guerillas Fire 3 Towns in North, Concentrate Forces

Athens, Aug. 24 (INS).—Troops in Athens and other Greek cities were alerted tonight against a possible Communist uprising while the nation is in the throes of its government crisis.

The military stand-by was called in all key areas by War Minister George Stratos.

Fear was expressed that factions working with Gen. Markos Vifthiades, who established a Free Greek state in the north, may consider the fall of the cabinet a ripe time for an attempt to seize the government.

Meanwhile, Premier-designate Constantin Tsaldaris suffered his first—and perhaps crucial—setback in an attempt to give the nation a new cabinet.

Liberals Reject Offer

Tsaldaris' hopes of getting the powerful Liberal Party into the cabinet were dashed when Liberal chief Themistocles Sophoulis rejected an offer to give the Liberals the same number of government portfolios as would go to the Populist Party (Royalists).

The 88-year-old Sophoulis, a long-time political foe of the premier-designate, also refused to pledge his 48 deputies to a confidence vote when a new government is submitted to parliament, probably on Thursday.

Three retiring ministers, George Papandreou, Social Democrat, Panayots Kanellopoulos, National Unionist, and Sophocles Venizelos, Venizelist liberal, are backing Sophoulis' aspirations for the premiership.

Their resignation last night because of opposition to the way the drive against the guerillas is being conducted, precipitated the fall of the cabinet last night.

Guerillas Renew Activities

Meanwhile renewed guerilla activities and military developments just outside the frontiers made the capital uneasy.

Three Greek towns were reported set afire by guerillas who were said to be concentrating for possible new attacks in the northern frontier districts.

Greek officials also told of troop movements in adjacent Bulgaria and Yugoslavia. Bulgaria has charged Greek troops and civilians fired across the Bulgarian frontier in two unprovoked attacks Friday night.

American officials in Washington have warned of drastic action to save Greece should that become necessary.

Sophoulis last night challenged King Paul's decision naming Tsaldaris as the one to attempt to form a new cabinet. Sophoulis contended he should have been

Griffith Says Send Men If Greece Is Invaded

Paul Griffith, national commander of the American Legion, said last night that the U. S. should send troops to aid Greece if that country is invaded. C. W. Thompson Wins Texas Seat; Bean, Regan Close

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 24 (A.P.).—Clark W. Thompson, Galveston businessman and former Congressman, was elected to Congress in yesterday's special election in the Ninth Texas District, while the race in the Sixteenth District was still a nip-and-tuck affair between Woodrow Bean and Ken Regan.

An unofficial tabulation by the Texas election bureau gave Thompson 14,240 votes to 10,390 for Louis J. Sulak, La Grange newspaper publisher, his closest rival in a field of eight seeking the vacancy caused by the death of Representative Joseph J. Mansfield in June.

Regan, a Midland oilman and former State senator, led Woodrow Bean, young State representative from Ysleta, Tex., by 421 votes in the contest for the unexpired term of R. Ewing Thomason, who resigned to become a Federal judge. Regan had 7079 votes and Bean 6658. Five other candidates were out of the running.

Latest unofficial returns indicated approval of an amendment to the State constitution to give State-supported colleges a 30-year 60 million dollar building program, with 87,393 votes for and 73,250 against.

The Post Poll

Majority of District Residents In Favor Of Barring Communists From Federal Jobs

Nearly seven out of ten Washington area residents favor barring Communists from Government jobs, but only one out of three area residents would outlaw the Communist Party by making party membership a crime.

These results were obtained in the latest Post Poll which explored local attitudes toward Communists.

The poll also showed that 64 per cent of Greater Washington residents think that Communists in this country are either very dangerous or fairly dangerous.

A wide variety of definitions on what constitutes disloyalty to this country was provided by the cross-section of area residents interviewed. Definitions offered ranged from outright treason to simply talking against or criticizing the Government.

Post Pollers asked:

"Should members of the Communist Party be forbidden to hold Government jobs, or should they have the same right as others to hold Government jobs?"

Replies were as follows:

	All Groups	In families with Govt. workers	In families with No Govt. workers
Communists should be forbidden to hold Government jobs	68%	71%	64%
They should have the same right to hold Government jobs	15	12	18
It depends on the job	8	8	8
Undecided	9	9	10

Washingtonians in families with Government workers are somewhat more opposed to Communists holding Government jobs than those from families with no Government workers. In connection with this, it is worth noting that many local residents asked Post interviewers for identification before discussing these questions, and some thought they might be FBI investigators. The two FBI investigators who happened to fall into the sample declined to answer the questions.

Washingtonians were also asked:

"Do you think that membership in the Communist Party should be made a criminal offense, or not?"

The largest group opposed outlawing the Communist Party, but it was short of being a majority. Two out of 10 were undecided.

They answered:

	All Groups	Educational Level Gr.	High	Col.
Communist Party should be made illegal	31%	42%	32%	25%
It should not be made illegal	48	31	48	59
Undecided	21	27	22	16

Asked the reason for their views, those who think it should not be a criminal offense to belong to the Communist Party said:

It would be a violation of civil rights	48%
Comments:
"People have a right to believe as they wish." "It goes back to the Bill of Rights, freedom of speech, press and belief." "Man has a legal right to belong to any organization," etc.
O. K. to belong so long as they don't break laws	12
The Communist Party is like any other political party	12
Comments:
"They are like the Republicans wanting to put down the Democrats. After all, some of their ideas seem to be all right and they might be accepted sometime." "They are just politicians—why discriminate?" etc.
It's the wrong way to handle it—it will aid the Communists instead of hurting them; it would make them martyrs; they would just go underground	10%
It will lead to prosecution of other groups — Jews, Negroes, etc., as in Germany	1
Other reasons	14
No reason given	7

(Adds to more than 100 per cent because more than one answer was possible.)

People who think the Communist Party should be made illegal gave the following reasons:

Communists are traitors, loyal to Russia	14%
They are trying to overthrow the Government	22
Communist doctrine is bad, a threat to democracy, our way of life	16
They are dangerous—grow-

Missing Witnesses May Delay Inquiry on Judge Raedy's Car

Two missing witnesses may delay the investigation today into the hit-run accident involving the automobile of Municipal Court Judge Ellen K. Raedy.

Sergt. E. H. Sennott of the Police Accident Investigation Unit reported last night that subpenas for 13-year-old Jimmy Frisby and his birthday party hostess, Mrs. Mary E. Hayes, 909 1st st. nw., had not been served. The two, he said, were reported "out of town for the weekend."

Subpenas for their appearance this morning before Clark F. King, assistant corporation counsel assigned to the criminal division of Municipal Court, were issued by the AIU at King's request. King said he wanted to question the two on whether or not Judge Raedy attended the boy's birthday party last Tuesday night.

Judge Raedy has told investigators she did not leave her apartment home, the Dorchester House 2480 16th st. nw., Tuesday evening, the night her car struck and slightly damaged a parked automobile at 1st and K sts nw. The judge, however, assumed responsibility for the driver, who did not stop, and identified him only as "Edward Emerson, former newspaperman, of New York."

News of the birthday party and Judge Raedy's reported attendance was given to investigators by Mrs. Louise McDonald, 62 I st. nw., a neighbor of Mrs. Mary Hayes. Mrs. McDonald reported that Mrs. Mamie Hayes, 78, a sister-in-law of Mary Hayes, told her Judge Raedy attended the party and had personally given Jimmy a birthday present.

The report, if substantiated, would place Judge Raedy within a block of the accident scene and

Impossible to Meet NLRB's Time Limit, IAM Head Asserts

The International Association of Machinists, the Nation's biggest independent union, complained last night that it is "physically impossible" for unions to meet the 20-day dead line for filing non-Communist affidavits and financial information with the National Labor Board.

IAM President Harvey W. Brown also protested that employes have to do nothing to qualify for the board's services under the Taft-Hartley law, "while a major labor union has little chance to qualify in less than a month or so of diligent effort."

Robert N. Denham, NLRB general counsel has given unions 20 days to file the information and affidavits or face dismissal of more than 1000 pending cases, about three fourths of them involving collective bargaining elections.

Denham said, however, that he would consider extending the time upon application.

The IAM has announced its intention to comply fully with the law's filing requirements. But Brown said that it faces dismissal of 405 of its cases "through no fault of its own, merely because of the physical impossibility of getting the necessary papers filled out and returned to the board or its units by the dead line."

Top CIO officials have said flatly that they will not file the "I-am-no-Communist" affidavits. An AFL spokesman said top officials probably would file, but several AFL unions have voted to boycott the board.

The IAM protested the board's decision would mean that many of its organizing drives would have to be conducted a second time.

Head of Legion Would Send Troops If Greece Is Invaded

New York, Aug. 24 (AP).—Paul H. Griffith, national commander of the American Legion, said today the United States should send troops to aid Greece if that country is invaded.

He warned that the "critical situation" in Greece poses the threat of "world conflagration on a moment's notice" and urged President Truman to call a special session of Congress to enact universal military training legislation to strengthen the Nation's armed forces.

He conceded that dispatch of United States troops to Greece probably would mean a shooting war, but pointed to the material support already sent to Greece and aid that "if it takes troops I believe we ought to send troops."

Speedy Action Urged

Griffith, here for the National Legion convention, declared that "the critical situation which has developed in Greece within the past few hours is a direct and dangerous head-on clash of the ideologies of democracy and communism. It could spread into world conflagration on a moment's notice."

Griffith said that "confronted by the new European situation," Truman should call Congress at once to enact UMT legislation. He urged that no other matters be considered at this proposed session, because our national existence perhaps depended on speedy congressional action on the country's defense.

"We already have sent supplies to Greece and our Navy is now in the Mediterranean. If it takes troops I believe we ought to send troops," he said.

Asked if the sending of troops to Greece would mean a formal declaration of war against Russia, he said, "I don't know what you mean by a formal declaration; I would have known 20 years ago. But there's a different kind of war now. I would say this: If we did send troops I believe it would start shooting."

U. N. Seen Too Weak

If Greece were invaded, he said, "There's no use waiting, as we waited before, until Greece was defeated. I think we ought to help Greece if she is invaded."

Griffith declared that he and the entire American Legion were wholeheartedly behind Truman's foreign policy and that he felt the United Nations was too weak to act in the current crisis.

"The United Nations is a baby in swaddling clothes without the power to act in this emergency although if it had an international police force it might be able to. You must have a police force behind an order."

Griffith's press conference was the opening round of the Legion convention, which opens officially on Thursday. Preliminary committee meetings will begin tomorrow, but the mass of Legion members are not expected to arrive before late Wednesday.

There will be two parades, an elaborate program of entertainment and a list of speakers which includes some of the biggest names in the country.

31 Oklahoma Guards Ill of Poison Food

Oklahoma City, Aug. 24 (AP).—Thirty-one members of the Oklahoma National Guard who have been in camp at Fort Sill were taken off two trains here today suffering with food poisoning. They were immediately rushed to the Air Forces hospital at Tinker Field, near Oklahoma City.

Lieut. Col. W. H. McCarroll, base surgeon at the field, reported that the majority were not in a serious condition.

Source of the poisoning was not immediately determined. Division officers said, however, that each man had been supplied with a box of sandwiches when he boarded the train at Fort Sill.

A close check is being made on other trains carrying Guardsmen due to arrive here later today.

Brig. Gen. Roy W. Kinney, State adjutant general, said a check made of four other trains carrying Guardsmen home from maneuvers at Fort Sill did not uncover other cases of food poisoning.

A board of inquiry will make full investigation, he said.

District Residents Would Bar Communists From U. S. Jobs

ing stronger, cause strikes, war mongers	6
It would control, break up communism in this country	15
Other reasons	8
No reason given	9

Local residents were asked:

"How dangerous do you think Communists in this country are—very dangerous, fairly dangerous, or not dangerous at all?"

Replies were as follows:

Communists in this country are very dangerous	36%
They are fairly dangerous	28
They are not dangerous at all	19
No opinion	17

Although only a little more than a third hold that American Communists are very dangerous, 64 per cent think Communists constitute some danger.

People who said Communists were very or fairly dangerous were asked: "What are your reasons for saying that?" and "In what way are they dangerous to the country?"

Reasons for fearing American Communists were as follows:

Reasons for saying Communists are dangerous:	Of those who say they are: Very Dangerous	Fairly Dangerous
Win others to their cause; propaganda affects the thoughts of people, college students, school children, the ignorant, the dissatisfied, etc.	25%	30%
Threaten democratic principles; opposed to our way of life, ideals, freedom; advocate totalitarianism	27	11
Try to overthrow the Government	20	8
Newspapers, radio, magazines, etc., say so; "they must be, or there wouldn't be so much talk."	9	17
Dangerous in time of crisis, war; learn about our secrets, send them to Russia, other countries; fifth column activity	13	13
Many Communists in this country; they have a strong organization; more Communists than we know; they are smart operators; much undercover work	12	11
Cause labor trouble; infiltrate unions, get control of unions, cause friction, strikes, hold-ups	9	13
Stir up dissatisfaction and strife between racial, religious and class groups	7	9
Stir up trouble (general)	7	8
Want to do away with capitalism, give everybody the same	2	1
Other reasons	7	9
No reason given	5	10

(This table adds to more than 100 per cent because more than one answer was possible.)

Many more people fear American Communists because they work against democratic principles and propagate their ideas than because they may possibly be spies.

Those who believe American Communists are not at all dangerous give as their reasons:

There are too few in this country	35%
Americans won't accept communism, they have better sense	33
The danger is blown up out of proportion by press, radio, etc.	7
There are some good things about communism—advocate equal rights, fairness, etc.	5
Other reasons (I've never seen a Communist; they haven't done any harm yet, etc.)	25
No reason given	8

(This table adds to more than 100 per cent because more than one answer was possible.)

Local residents were asked:

"Plans are being made to investigate some Federal employes for disloyalty to this country. What is your definition of disloyalty to this country?"

The definitions given were as follows:

Definition	All Groups	Educational Level Gr. School	High School	Col.
Treason: Primary allegiance to another country; spying selling secrets, etc.	25%	13%	23%	34%
Revolution: Trying to overthrow the Government actively	12	7	9	20
Talking against or criticising the Government constitution, Government officials	16	14	20	13
Any action against the Government general	12	11	13	13
Opinion: Opposed to our form of Government, spirit of Constitution, our way of life	10	3	9	16
Breaking laws: Acting against the Constitution, Bill of Rights breaking other laws	8	5	9	10
Being a Communist, or Communist sympathizer	7	4	7	7
Misusing Government position for personal gain	3	3	3	1
Other definitions	12	10	13	10
Unable to give a definition	18	41	17	4

(This table adds to more than 100 per cent because some people gave more than one answer).

Among the "other" definitions given, the idea of being disloyal to the job, or not giving your all to the job, which was promoted during the war, is still sticking with many workers. Dishonesty of all kinds is also mentioned by a number of these people.

Although relatively few people mention Communists specifically when defining disloyalty, later questioning revealed that some who defined it as treason or revolution, were thinking primarily of Communists.

Except for the fact that more people from families with Government workers were able to give some definition of disloyalty than those from non-Government families, these two groups did not differ significantly in their definitions.

(The first question asked of the cross-section of Washington and nearby Maryland and Virginia residents interviewed in the poll was the one calling for a definition of disloyalty. Other questions were asked in this order: Are Communists dangerous; should they be forbidden to hold Government jobs; should membership in the Communist Party be made a criminal offense?—Editor's Note.)

Next week, The Post Poll will report on what Washington area residents think Communists are, what are their goals, and what they believe in.

WAA to Help Army, Navy Oil Supplies

By the United Press

The War Assets Administration announced plans last night to help the Army and Navy relieve "a critical shortage in military petroleum supplies."

It said that preferential treatment will be given in the purchase of surplus oil refineries to prospective customers who express a willingness to produce for the armed services at competitive prices.

The Army-Navy petroleum board advised WAA that all grades of aviation gasoline particularly are needed. It asked the agency to give "consideration to those offers which would benefit the military services in obtaining additional gasoline at competitive prices."

In the future the board will submit to WAA its recommendations on surplus refinery facilities before the agency's real property board considers proposed awards and contracts.

WAA Administrator Robert N. Littlejohn said that "since petroleum products are so vitally needed for the armed forces, and since this is a matter involved in the national defense, it is desired that whole-hearted cooperation be given in the matter."

War Assets now has four surplus refineries of large production capacity. One is at Catlettsburg, Ky., two at Texas City, Tex., and a third at Norwalk, Calif.

France Prepares For Polio Invasion

Paris, Aug. 24.—France was preparing herself for an invasion of infantile paralysis today, alarmed by the unchecked British Isles epidemic and outbreaks in Germany and Italy.

Ministry of Public Health appeals for blood donors, which are being posted throughout the nation, were the first precautionary government step. These notices warned against the danger of an epidemic and asked survivors of the disease to give their blood for preventive serum.

Donors would be given special food rations.

Train Fire Blame Laid

Berlin, Aug. 24 (AP).—Locomotive sparks tonight ignited a can of gasoline carried by a passenger were blamed today for a fire in an overcrowded suburban train that killed 24 persons and injured 49.

The disaster occurred yesterday between Berlin and Kremmen, 25 miles northwest of this city, in the Russian occupation zone with Eastport's and several others to be considered.

6 U. S. Agencies Deny Interest In 'Quoddy' Plan to Train DPs

But Quoddy Village is in no condition at present for industry, or even for occupancy. Not only is there no machinery in its shops, but much of the plumbing and other facilities have been removed from its dwellings.

So here is what the Cohen prospectus proposes:

We are calling on War Assets to:

"1. Deliver Quoddy free of payment to the City of Eastport.

"2. Renovate, equip all facilities before turning it over for DP village.

"3. Furnish all needed machinery and equipment in its possession which we will select for industrial or agricultural purposes.

"4. We have qualified to receive all the above gratis or at 5 per cent of its value. This we have done as a nonprofit, tax-exempt education institution, or under a city training program."

Sixth on Priority List

WAA says its sales are "as is, where is," and any improvements would have to be made by the purchaser. As for the machinery to be obtained "either gratis or at 5 per cent of the value," WAA says it is permitted to sell certain types of machinery for educational purposes at 40 per cent to 95 per cent discount, depending upon its availability and the priority of the purchaser. Educational institutions are accorded sixth place on the priority list.

WAA says also that neither the City of Eastport nor Cohen has applied for purchase of any machinery except by inference in its bid for the village itself.

Army's Role Outlined

Cohen's prospectus says his DPs would be selected by his agents, assisted by the Army. In detail, he gives the Army these missions:

"1. U. S. Army help us select DPs.

"2. U. S. Army transport DPs at U. S. Army expense from American zone to Quoddy.

"3. United States Army furnish food and clothing for DPs for 60 days from departure from American zone."

Categorically the War Department replies:

1. It would help screen DPs if asked.

2. It has no funds to transport DPs to the United States.

3. It was never entitled to furnish 60-day rations to DPs except for repatriation, not for resettlement. And anyway it has no funds now even for repatriation rations.

Would Furnish Visas

The State Department is given a prominent role in the scheme by Cohen's prospectus. Says this document:

"The State Department will furnish the visas for entrance either as transit, or for trainees. It will support the project by sponsoring it before all the foreign governments. It will give its active support before all other Government departments — Army, Maritime, War, Assets, Treasury, etc. It has appointed a deputy for this purpose. It is in process of notifying all South American embassies, to help make Quoddy a success. It will give me all necessary documents to take with me for a special trip to South America to put the project into effect. Gen. (John H.) Hilldring, Assistant Secretary of State for Occupied Areas, is personally following it thru. Several meetings have been held and we are following State Department guidance."

Department Denies Action

All this is positively denied by a State Department spokesman, except that Cohen may have been furnished a passport to visit South America. This spokesman said the department has not committed itself one way or another, that it has made no decision for taking the matter up with South American governments, that it can make no such decision until Cohen brings it a specific request for action, which he has not done. He said the State Department has appointed no "special deputy" to aid in the scheme.

Cohen says in his prospectus that he has asked the Immigration Service to accept his personal bond for one fourth of the DPs only, since "obviously" the children would not desert the project and "surely" mothers would not. The amount of bond required is $500 for each individual to insure his leaving the country at the expiration of his permit to visit.

Bond for All

An Immigration Service official told The Washington Post there was "reason to believe" bond would be required in this case for every individual, including mothers and children. This bond, he said, would be in cash or a surety bond with cash collateral.

The same official pointed out an additional difficulty to all others which surround the scheme: That any children born while their parents were at Quoddy would be American citizens and would have to be treated as such.

Cohen says unqualifiedly in his prospectus that President Truman had given the project his "approval and offered his support" and agreed "to issue a directive to urge and hasten the cooperation of all Government departments." He says also that Presidential Adviser Clark Clifford had been appointed "to represent and act for the President" and had been "functioning" since July 16.

Truman Hasn't Approved

President Truman's interest in and sympathy for displaced persons is generally known, as is his desire to do whatever can be done for them. However, he has not given Cohen's project his "approval and offered his support," has issued no directive such as Cohen describes and has asked Clifford only to investigate the deal.

Cohen says he has arranged with Argentina, Brazil and Uruguay to accept stated quotas of DPs trained at Quoddy and that he has sold Argentina 8000 tractors, of which 1000 have been delivered. At the same conference at New York last week at which he gave this information he said he had sold 1050 tractors to UNRRA.

Actually, according to both the UNRRA and the Treasury Department, he contracted for 1050 tractors by negotiation but delivered only 700 of them by the agreed date. The remaining 350 were canceled because of nondelivery.

Cohen indicated DPs would be trained as farmers and tractor operators before being shipped south, though he did not explain how South American farming methods would be taught on the Maine coast.

Any tractors purchased in quantity in South America would have to be paid for in dollars with government funds. These dollars, in turn, must come from some such source as Export-Import Bank loans, financed out of the pockets of American taxpayers.

The Argentine Embassy here said it had heard vaguely of some deal for tractors. The Uruguayan Embassy said it had received a letter from Cohen's Empire Tractor Corp., but had not bothered to answer it. The Brazilian Embassy denied knowledge of the matter at all.

(This is the second of a series of articles on Quoddy Village. The third will appear tomorrow.)

Russia Acts to Form Pact on Iranian Oil

Pressure Increased To Form Company in Three-Month Period

London, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—Russia is putting increased pressure on reluctant Iran to carry out an agreement to form a Russian-Iranian company for exploitation of the rich oil fields in northern Iran, private advices said today.

Russian ambassador to Tehran, Ivan Sadchikov, has presented Premier Ahmad Ghavam es-sultaneh with "new" terms which in effect are identical with those contained in the original tentative agreement signed by Sadchikov and Ghavam in April, 1946, the advices said.

The only new clause, it was said, was that a new agreement must be presented at the earliest moment to the Iranian Majlis or parliament and that a Russian-Iranian oil company must be formed at the latest three months after the agreement has been given parliamentary ratification.

However, the Iranian government was said to be holding firmly to its position, but at the same time has said that when the new cabinet has been installed in office the position would then be reviewed.

Radio Moscow broadcast a long article of the Communist newspaper organ Pravda complaining of the "intrigues of Iranian reactionaries" alleged to be trying to disrupt the Russian-Iranian oil agreement.

[The Iranian government is pursuing a "dangerous course" by indicating clearly that it intends to break the 1946 agreement for the establishment of a Russian-Iranian oil company in northern Iran, Pravda said today, as reported by the United Press.

[Further, Pravda asserted, Shah Mohammed Riza Pahlevi and his palace circles are supporting the course.

[At the same time, the newspaper added, both the government and the palace "in order to please definite foreign circles," are planning to join Greece and Turkey in an "anti-Soviet front."

[Intimating that the oil issue had not been finally decided, Pravda said: "The nearest future will show whether government circles will continue on this dangerous route."]

Greeks Told To Release U. S. Gifts

New York, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—The Cooperative for American Remittances to Europe, which distributes American-donated food and clothing packages throughout Europe, will close its operations in Greece, August 28, unless the Greek government releases immediately thousands of packages now impounded on a legal technicality, it was learned tonight.

More than 6000 CARE food and clothing packages have piled up on the docks at Piraeus, port for Athens, since March when the government suddenly refused to release them for United States-supervised distribution. Since that date CARE has used its stockpiles in Greece for distribution and its supplies are now exhausted.

The Greek government advised CARE that an agreement signed in June, 1946, never had been legal because it had not been published in the official court circular.

The United States State Department has cabled the American Embassy in Athens to solve the problem as rapidly as possible.

Greek officials said privately, it was disclosed, that they feared the packages of food and clothing competed with local importers and merchants, deprived the government of revenue because they were admitted duty-free, and were not suitable for Greek tastes. The officials added that "relief remittances in dollars are preferred."

Total distribution of CARE packages in Greece to date has been some 15,000 packages costing American doners $150,000.

named, as leader of the leading opposition group.

United States Ambassador Lincoln MacVeagh called on King Paul last night to discuss the situation.

Following the meeting, the ambassador declared:

We are looking for a more liberal Greek government. The Americans are here to guide and advise. We are not interested in parties or personalities.

The Greek news agency reported that a strong band of guerillas, allegedly from Bulgaria attacked the Greek frontier villages of Neohori and Daphni, forcing the Greek gendarmerie to retreat.

The agency quoted a dispatch from Salonika as saying that 20 residents of Daphni were carried off to Bulgaria by the raiders, who ransacked and burned many houses and buildings during the raid.

The guerillas were said to have seized food supplies at Neohori before setting fire to at least 20 houses in that town.

Other Salonika dispatches reported heavy fighting during the night at Nigrita which came under guerilla attack for the second time this week. The northern Macedonian town was reported in flames.

Cabinet Fall Seen As Move Against Reds

Written for International News Service

High Washington diplomatic quarters yesterday attributed the collapse of the Greek cabinet to a desire in Athens to checkrein Communist elements seeking to undermine King Paul.

The U. S. State Department withheld comment.

Official sources here said that one of the main reasons the cabinet of Premier Demetrios Maximos fell was because both the centrists and leftists desired to oust Public Order Minister Napoleon Ervas.

Ervas was regarded by all the liberal and some of the right-of-center elements in Athens as high-handed and ineffective and furnishing the Communists with propaganda ammunition.

Bulgaria May Reenforce Frontier

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—The official Yugoslav news agency Tanjug, in a Sofia dispatch today reported that Bulgaria has issued a communique "in connection with latest Greek provocations" which said the government "considers . . . sending considerable troops to Greek frontier regions.

The communique, according to Tanjug, charged that on August 22 Greek patrols fired on Bulgarian frontier posts and on a Bulgarian plane. In addition, the communique said Greek military units were being reinforced and trenches dug "in advanced positions" near Digme station in Greece.

Tanjug said that "bearing in mind former provocations by Greek troops—the communique states—the Bulgarian government considers . . . sending of considerable troops and has informed the Allied control commission (in Sofia) and the (United Nations) Security Council on this."

Epileptic Girl, 14, Caged 3 Years in Wait for Hospital

Kannapolis, N. C., Aug. 24 (AP).—A 14-year-old epileptic girl has lived in an open-air wooden stockade and cage-like room here for three years while her parents have sought unsuccessfully to have her admitted to a State institution, Police Chief I. T. Chapman said today.

The girl is Maxine Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Smith, Chapman said that the hopelessly sick child roams the enclosure, alternately tearing up paper and leaves, and battering her head against walls and screaming.

State officials said Maxine was 1 of 100 or more patients on a long waiting list for admission.

Chapman said that Maxine's parents built the stockade to protect the girl and themselves. Maxine is too strong to be handled by her mother or sister and her father is barely a match for her.

Bulgaria High Court Will Get Petkov's Plea

Sofia, Bulgaria, Aug. 24 (AP).—An attorney for Nikola Petkov said today the doomed opposition leader had signed an appeal for presentation to Bulgaria's Supreme Court tomorrow.

Petkov, 54, is under death sentence as a convicted conspirator against the Communist-led Fatherland Front, which dominates the government. The United States and Britain last week asked Russia to join them in an investigation of Petkov's trial, but the Russian representative on the Allied Control Commission for Bulgaria turned down the request, calling the sentence "a purely Bulgarian affair." Subsequently the United States instructed its Moscow embassy to press an appeal at the Kremlin.

(Britain joined the United States today in protesting to Russia against the Petkov sentence.

(A British foreign office spokesman said at London that Frank Roberts, British Charge d'Affaires in Moscow, had asked the Soviet government to join in consultations with Britain and the United States on the death sentence for Petkov. Roberts described the sentence as "a gross miscarriage of justice."

(Consultations are especially needed, Roberts was reported to have told Deputy Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky in a letter, in view of the Bulgarian government's charge that Petkov engaged in "a conspiracy with foreign reactionary circles."

(The Foreign Office said also that John Sterndale Bennett, British political representative in Sofia, had asked the Bulgarian government to defer the execution of Petkov.

(A similar approach has been made by the head of the British military mission in Bulgaria to the Russian general who is deputy chairman of the Allied Control Commission.)

[A dramatic meeting between Hungarian President Kolarov and United States Representative John Horner at the President's Black Sea castle, was reported by the United Press.

[Reliable sources said Kolarov, a veteran Communist, rejected Horner's request to intervene in the Petkov case. These sources said Horner told Kolarov that American public opinion was outraged at the conduct of the trial and believed it part of a campaign to wipe out political opposition as well as a violation of the human rights clause of the peace treaty.

[The same sources said the president did not deny or comment on the charge the government intended to eliminate all opposition, but insisted that the trial had proceeded with scrupulous fairness.

[Kolarov, it was said, explained that Petkov had tried to obstruct Bulgaria's two-year economic plan by inciting farmers against the government with the result that the nation's food supplies were reduced and Bulgaria may face a famine this winter.

[Kolarov reportedly agreed that the Bulgarian press convicted Petkov during the trial, that the stories inspired a flood of resolutions demanding the death sentence and that this would not happen in the western world. But he insisted this is not unusual in Bulgaria.]

Balancing of Greek Budget Is Major Problem of Griswold

By M. W. Fodor
Post Reporter

Athens, Greece, Aug. 24.—Though only one month has passed since Dwight P. Griswold, American administrator, arrived in Athens, and though many of his key collaborators—for example, the tax experts and others—have not yet reached Athens, work has begun at high pressure. The Greeks already refer to the Griswold Mission as the "Shirtsleeve Mission," because the governor and his aides do work in shirtsleeves. They do not care about appearance; they intend to provide the maximum work in a minimum time.

One of the chief problems of the mission is balancing the Greek budget. There are frequent meetings between Governor Cochran, deputy chief of the Griswold Mission, and M. Helmis, Greek Minister of Finance. It appears that the foreign loan and the Greek internal revenue will be added to form the total revenue, out of which will then be paid the expenditures.

Military Expenditures the Key

The key to the budget will be the amount to be used on military expenditures. This will be determined in a few days.

Figures received from Greek quarters are often contradictory. The mission is taking no chances. They wanted to know, for example, how many tires must be imported during the next year. The Greek figures varied. Thereupon, the American experts just went around to every important depot and made an inventory. Today they know exactly how many tires will have to be imported.

This has been repeated for other materials, and slowly a correct inventory of available supplies is being drafted.

Engineering activities are being revealed by the arrival of key personnel and by the announcement of contracts. The most important arrival was that of Col. D. W. Griffiths, of the Corps of Army Engineers, in charge of engineering activities. Other important arrivals were Brendon Burns, Wilfred Painter and A. Jeanett. Burns is representing jointly Grove-Sheperd-Wilson-Krug, Inc., and Steer, Inc., which firms received contracts for harbor rehabilitation and for the reconstruction of the Corinth Canal.

Contracts for Reconstruction

Wilfred Painter and Jeanett are representing the following firms: Johnson-Drake-Pieper of New York, Stark-Park-Freeman of New York, and Guy Atkinson of San Francisco.

A total of 82.4 million dollars worth of contracts was placed with these firms on a cost-plus-fee (3 per cent fee) basis. They were negotiated by the Corps of Engineers. Out of this total 64 million dollars will be used for the reconstruction of railroads, highways and bridges. About $17,500,000 will be utilized for the reconstruction of the harbors of Piraeus, Volos and Salonika and for the rehabilitation of the Corinth Canal. Some $900,000 will be used to purchase steel for 14 bridges.

William F. Koriftzen, of the United States Bureau of Reclamations, has been named chief adviser to the mission of reclamation work. It is expected that a total of 800.000 acres of land in Macedonia and Thrace will be reclaimed by June, 1948.

It has not yet been decided how many American personnel are to be brought in by the engineers. A Greek paper revealed that the corps of engineers intended to bring 1500 men to do the work, but it appears that the Griswold Mission, to economize on dollars, would prefer to have Greeks doing the work, and have only key men, not exceeding 200, to advise and supervise.

Dead Fish Defile Shore

St. Petersburg, Fla., Aug. 24 (AP).—Fish killed by the "red tide" continued to come ashore along most Pinellas county gulf beaches today to the growing concern of beach residents and businessmen, who thought they had seen the end of the plague after several days without its traces last week.

Frances Dillon, 17-year-old Brentwood, Md., girl, last night was acclaimed "Miss Independent Trade Association of 1947" at the organization's basket picnic held at Magruder Park in Hyattsville.

The beauty contest, feature of the evening, concluded with the selection of Miss Dillon from 13 contestants. Clad in a white satin swim suit, the winner, who is cashier at the Cameo Theater in Mt. Rainier, received $25.

Second and third place winners, who received $15 and $10 prizes, respectively, were Elsie Jones, 17, of 3103 Longfellow st., and Ramona Cooley, 18, of Rhode Island ave., both of Hyattsville.

More than 2000 persons attended, officials of the outing reported, and prize contests were open to all ages.

Belgium Acts to Test Power Of U. N. Security Board Orders

Lake Success, Aug. 24 (AP).—Belgium today moved to test the right of the United Nations Security Council to act in East Indies hostilities where delegates now generally agree that their cease-fire order to the Dutch and Indonesians has been ineffective.

The Netherlands' neighbor proposed in a resolution that the International Court of Justice be asked to rule on the jurisdictional right of the U. N. to take any action.

The Belgian move, which supports Dutch contentions that the dispute is an internal affair and no business of the U. N., came amid indications that the United States would press for immediate Council supervision of the cease-fire order voted August 1.

An American spokesman said his delegation would ask for a vote tomorrow (3 p. m. EDT) when the Council starts another round with the Indonesian and Egyptian cases. The spokesman added that the United States wants to stop the fighting first and then proceed to the matter of mediation.

The problems of atomic energy control and arms reduction will be aired again during the week. The arms commission starts off tomorrow with debate on a proposal calling upon the 55 member governments to submit data on their troop strength and armaments. The Atomic Energy Commission is working on a report for the Assembly.

British Countries Set for Jap Talks

Australian Views on Peace Settlement To Be Presented at 'Family' Conference

Canberra, Australia, Aug. 24 (AP).—Australia's views on a Japanese peace settlement will be presented with those of other British countries at the British Commonwealth's "family conference" on Japan, scheduled to open here Tuesday.

Herbert V. Evatt, back from discussions with Gen. Douglas MacArthur in Tokyo, plunged at once into a series of conferences to formulate in detail this dominion's policy on a Japanese peace.

Broadly the Australian attitude is understood to be strikingly similar to that of General MacArthur—and presumably that of Washington—the only difference being on emphasis placed on different aspects.

Plans for the conference, the most important ever held in Australia, call for a frank exchange of ideas among British dominions in order to approach international talks with a clear understanding of objectives. There is no apparent intention of formulating one commonwealth policy on the Japanese peace treaty and "ganging up" on the United States.

Argentina Still Holds to View

Sunday activity led to a split over the right of hemisphere nations not joining a defense pact to receive aid if they are attacked.

A special five-man group stalled over this issue as other delegates prepared for next week's debates or left the highland surrounding Petropolis for more moderate climate near the coast.

[The Dominion of Canada will be extended a most cordial invitation to sign the hemispheric defense treaty in order to solidify the defense system from Cape Horn to the Arctic Circle, the New York Herald Tribune said today.]

[The United Press said the United States fought a dramatic behind-the-scenes battle tonight to keep the hemispheric defense treaty from becoming a veiled anti-Communist pact and to insure that it is fully in accord with the United Nations Charter. The fight is going on in a six-nation subcommittee with Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), representing the United States. United States delegates are gravely worried over the present situation and the entire delegation met for nearly four hours tonight working out plans for the critical week which starts tomorrow.]

Ignore Hunger Strike Appeal, Irgun Tells Jews, But 'Boycott'

Jerusalem, Aug. 24 (AP).—Sir Alan Cunningham, British High Commissioner to Palestine, is contemplating leaving for Great Britain Tuesday to confer with members of the British government concerning the transfer of 4400 refugee Jews from the Mediterranean to Germany, British sources said tonight.

The sources said Cunningham was "generally regarded to hold somewhat different views than some of his fellow officials on the situation" in which the Jews, refused admission to Palestine, were returned to Europe in three British transports, spending more than three weeks off Port de Bouc, France. The transports now are headed for Hamburg, Germany.

Meanwhile, Irgun Zvai Leumi, underground Jewish resistance group, called on Jews of the Holy Land and of the world to ignore appeals to all Jewry to hold a hunger strike tomorrow to protest British handling of the case of the 4400 Jews.

"You can stop the cruel British machine forever," a broadcaster declared. "Do not pay your tax money. Do not negotiate with them. Do not obey their orders. Do not obey their laws. Boycott, boycott, boycott until the end."

The only report of violence in the Holy Land during the day was related by a private Jewish source who said 30 young Jews cordoned off the house of Moshe Rosnai, a Jewish postal employe, in Givath Shmuel, near Tel Aviv, and kidnaped his son.

[Jamal Husseini, deputy chairman of the Arab higher committee, said today that the committee had worked out a plan to flood Palestine with Arab illegal immigrants at a ratio of 10 Arabs for each Jewish illegal immigrant.

[In this way, Husseini said in an interview with the United Press, the Arabs will be able to counteract Jewish illegal immigration and maintain the balance of population.

[The first contingent of 20,000 Arabs is waiting in Arab states adjoining Palestine to enter by stealth "if Jewish illegal immigration continues after the United Nations General Assembly," Husseini said.]

France Silent on Request

Paris, Aug. 24 (AP).—France left unanswered tonight a British request that she cooperate in a welcome-by-force to the 4400 Jews of the "Exodus 1947" expedition, but an early response was expected.

The refugees, intercepted by the British on their way from France to Palestine and returned to French waters, refused to disembark despite a French offer of asylum. Then the British headed the ships toward Hamburg, where Tommies can use force to land the Jews and move them overland to the French border. London proposed yesterday that France agree to receive them there.

From Jerusalem the Jewish Agency dispatched cables to all the United Nations except Britain and the Arab states, seeking their intervention.

can command in Korea has done everything possible to facilitate the progress of the joint commission," Hodges declared.

"It is true there have been arrests by the police recently in southern Korea," he said." "These arrests have been necessary to control seditious activities. It is hard to understand why the ring leaders of these activities should be considered by the Soviet delegations vitally important to the work of the joint commission, particularly at this time."

No Agreement Foreseen

[At the same time, Molotov adhered adamantly to the Soviet position on Korean participation in consultations with the joint commission for the formation of a provisional Korean government. As this position is far away from that of the United States, observers are unable to foresee agreement in the near future.

[The Moscow radio earlier today broadcast the text of Marshall's letter and Molotov's reply. The broadcast said Molotov wrote that the Soviet delegate on the Korean commission had been instructed to cooperate in the drafting of a joint "report of the state of its (the commission's) work so that each government could immediately discuss steps which could be useful to accomplish the purposes of the Moscow decision." (This decision regarding Korea was made by the Foreign Ministers' Conference in 1945.)]

The main issue is what political parties and organizations in Korea shall be consulted by the commission on the shape of the future Korean government. The American's favor "broad consultation" and have noted that the organizations the Russians want to consult are all leftist, if not outright Communist.

[Molotov's note was a reply to Marshall's communication of August 12, expressing concern over the lack of agreement on Korea and suggesting that the joint commission report to the Soviet and American Governments by August 21, so that each government could consider further steps.

landed in Tokyo today to get from Gen. Douglas MacArthur a preliminary report on Korea, still split and occupied by Russian and American troops two years after the end of the war.

Wedemeyer will remain here until Tuesday, when his C-54 will take off for the American zone of Korea. He will make an on-the-spot investigation there for eight or 10 days and return to Tokyo before leaving for Washington to make a report to President Truman.

As a special fact-finder for the President in the Far East, Wedemeyer completed his mission in China earlier today. Before he left Nanking, he issued a farewell statement, denouncing the widespread "defeatism, greed and incompetence" he had found in the Nationalist government.

Moslems Slay Sikhs, Hindus

New Delhi, Aug. 24 (AP).—Press dispatches from the Punjab said today that enraged Moslems on the Pakistan side of the divided Province were slaying Sikhs and Hindus. They sought retaliation for the deaths of hundreds of Moslems at the hands of Sikh mobs on the Punjab's Indian side.

Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru, Prime Minister of the new Dominion of India, left by plane to view conditions on the Indian side, where Sikh war parties have been waging a campaign to exterminate or expel all Moslems stranded in the Hindu-dominated sector when the boundary line was drawn.

Many villages and cities are so badly battered they look as if armies had fought through them.

Both Nehru and Mohamed Ali Jinnah, governor general of Moslem Pakistan, have pledged protection to the minorities in their dominions, but trouble-making local leaders were keeping alive the flames of hatred. Mobs were taking a heavy toll, including women and children.

A communique indicated that war parties were roaming the countryside, systematically putting villagers to death and burning their homes.

promote tranquility in the nation, and to help guide the country through the path of liberty and justice, has handed over the power of the republic to the Minister of Defense, Col. Carlos Mancheno. I do irrevocably resign the post of constitutional president of the republic."

It was a repetition of history for Velasco Ibarra, who became President of Ecuador for the first time in 1934, only to be forced out of office by a military group 11 months later.

Colonel Mancheno said he would call together all political parties, without exception, in order to give them a chance to choose the best men possible to take over the ministerial portfolios in a new government.

Prepares to Leave

Colonel Mancheno dispatched a circular to all army commands in Ecuador informing them of the events and asking their cooperation. His statement said:

"Obeying the request of the people, and in the view of the resignation of the President of the republic, who handed over power to me, so this power, in view of his resignation, should not fall in the hands of a party divorced from the people, the members of the armed forces see ourselves in the necessity of taking over the government temporarily. At the same time we appeal to our compatriots to forget their differences, and at this moment join us in a supreme effort to save the fatherland."

The Argentine-born wife of the President, Mrs. Corina Parral de Velasco Ibarra, went to the presidential palace accompanied by Argentine Ambassador Albino Pugnalin, with the evident intention of packing for the flight to Colombia. A military plane was provided for the couple.

Delegates Shocked

Quitandinha, Brazil, Aug. 24 (AP). News of the coup in Ecuador shocked delegates to the Inter-American Conference today.

Gen. Pedro Aurelio Goes Monteiro, member of the Brazilian delegation, said the revolt was "a disagreeable surprise. The conference will certainly have to discuss it."

Chief Paraguayan Delegate Federico Chavez said: "This is very sad. The time of the coup could not be worse."

disprove her alibi that she had not left her home. Judge Raedy's alibi is backed by her friend, Miss Dorothy Hayes, Maritime Commission stenographer and sister of Mrs. Marie H. Frisby, Municipal Court cashier, Jimmy's mother. Miss Hayes said she played gin rummy with Judge Raedy at the judge's apartment throughout the hours in question.

The accident was initially reported at 9:20 p. m. Tuesday by a witness, Hilton Rheubottom of 1504 Stevens rd. se., an employe of a filling station at the scene of the accident. Rheubottom identified the driver of the hit-run automobile as "a middle-aged woman, accompanied by a male companion." He told police the car went through a stop light at the intersection and mounted a curbing after striking the parked car. A parking lot attendant at the Dorchester said Judge Raedy drove into the lot about 11 p. m. Tuesday with another woman and two men.

Perhaps the least perturbed over the incident is Mrs. Elizabeth M. Wimbish of 910 1st st. nw., owner of the damaged automobile. She said Judge Raedy has agreed to pay damages, which a garage has estimated at $29.

Corporation counsel entered the picture when the AIU asked it to conduct a special investigation and recommend what, if any, police action need be taken.

Critics Give Miss Truman Mild Praise

Hollywood, Aug. 24 (AP).—Margaret Truman, an Independence, Mo., girl who wanted to be an opera star long before she became daughter of a President, rested today after her concert debut and read reviews that indicated she may some day achieve her wish.

Last night the 23-year-old soprano faced 15,000 curious music fans at the 20,000-capacity Hollywood Bowl and won hearty applause at the finish of her singing. From the music critics she received praise for her courage and poise and a reminder of certain shortcomings.

Margaret arrived almost two hours before the concert, accompanied by Secret Service men and her coach, Mrs. Margaret A. Strickler. Calm and assured, she read well-wishing telegrams, applied her own makeup and donned a white formal with a flowing skirt and large, upward-curving shoulders.

Gazes High to Hill

After the 90-piece Hollywood Bowl orchestra had played Prokofiev's Classical Symphony, Margaret walked to the center of the broad platform, greeted by friendly applause. She smiled at Conductor Eugene Ormandy, clasped her hands and gazed at the rim of the amphitheater, high up the hillside.

She first sang "Voi che Sapete," a Mozart aria from "The Marriage of Figaro." Standing back two feet from the microphone, which all bowl artists use, she displayed poise and volume. Her only glaring fault to the layman was a weakness on low notes. She did her best singing in Gretry's "La Fauvette avec ses Petits," a duet with flute, which displayed her virtuosity.

Margaret returned after intermission to sing three songs in English, Haydn's "My Mother Bids Me Bind My Hair," Watts' "Little Shepherd's Song" and "My Hero" from Straus' "The Chocolate Soldier." They were pleasantly delivered and the ovation brought two encores, "Land of the Sky Blue Waters" and "Cielito Lindo." She was called back for five bows and scattered applause still remained when Ormandy returned to conduct the final orchestral number.

["No, I wasn't frightened," Miss Truman told friends. "All I could see while I was singing was two men sitting on top of the hill."]

Here is what the critics said:

Margaret Harford, Hollywood Citizen-News: "If properly developed, Miss Truman's voice might be channeled into an accomplished lyric soprano. Her middle and lower registers have an appealing quality, but she is now being forced as a coloratura."

Of Surprising Volume

Albert Goldberg, Los Angeles Times: "Miss Truman's voice is actually of rather surprising volume . . . She surprised by the agility of her singing . . . Interpretively, Miss Truman is not yet far beyond the student stage."

Patterson Greene, Los Angeles Examiner, cited "faculty schooling," adding "in Miss Truman's favor were a voice of considerable inherent possibilities, a genuine fervor for song, a musical nature, a winning stage presence and a serious approach to her art."

Owen Callin, Los Angeles Herald-Express: "Her high register is extremely weak and, where depth is desired in certain phases, her voice is shallow. On the favorable side of the picture are an inherent sweetness, stage presence, fair phrasing and a coloratura showing promise."

Margaret attracted the second biggest crowd of the bowl season, outdrawing Artur Rubinstein, Jose Iturbi and the Ballet Russe and topped only by 20,000 attendance at a Gershwin memorial concert conducted by Paul Whiteman. She is scheduled to begin a singing tour of 30 cities, beginning in Pittsburgh in October and ending in Washington about December 22. Next year she may try for her life's ambition—opera.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 24 (U.P.).—The bombing of a veteran Atlanta reporter's home last night, climaxing an unprecedented Georgia crime wave, was denounced today by the Governor's office as an attempt at intimidation by a rowdy political group."

Gregory

A spokesman for Gov. M. E. Thompson said that several such groups had been sprawled by the growing crime wave which began in Atlanta and spread to many parts of the State. For several days the Governor has received reports that some act of intimidation could be expected, the spokesman said.

It came last night at Decatur, Ga., when a "gasoline" bomb was set off on the porch of the home of C. E. Gregory, political reporter for the Atlanta Journal for 26 years.

Lottery Operations Disclosed

Gregory, who was inside the house reading, was not injured but was badly shaken by the blast, which ripped off the porch railing. Decatur police found fragments of glass and a strong smell of petroleum.

A few hours earlier the Journal had carried an article by Gregory reporting the Governor as saying that the "activities of small and irresponsible groups who take the law in their hands must be stopped in Georgia."

[The Associated Press said Gregory expressed belief the bombing of his home might have resulted from his disclosures involving lottery operations in Atlanta.

["Earlier this week I wrote stories about a secret parole granted the Ring of the lottery operators who was under a long prison sentence.

["I also discovered that two others who were sentenced to prison more than two years ago are still at liberty. The Journal had used these facts in a strong editorial asking 'why' just a few hours before my home was bombed."]

Other Bases Cited

Thompson immediately ordered the Georgia Bureau of Investigation, headed by Lieut. W. C. McLemore, to search for the bomb throwers.

The Governor had particularly denounced two assault cases in Georgia. One was the mauling of a CIO organizer in LaGrange and the other was an attack on a leader of a rival political party in the late Eugene Talmadge's home county, Telfair.

Gregory and a colleague, George Goodwin, were prominent in the Journal's expose last winter of voting procedure in Telfair County that gave Talmadge's son, Herman, a brief occupancy in the Governor's chair on the basis of write-in votes.

A spokesman for Thompson, who became Governor when the State Supreme Court kicked out young Talmadge, said the news of formation of rowdy, ideological groups who "have had trouble with Negroes" reached the executive office some time ago.

Thompson did not believe the gangs were inspired either by the Ku Klux Klan or by the Columbians, but said that former members of one or the other organizations may have taken part in the bombing.

The blast at Gregory's home climaxed a crime wave in the Atlanta area ranging from reckless driving by teen-agers to the brutal rape and slaying of two young matrons.

Girls getting off work late have been boldly accosted by would-be rapists on lighted streets. Laundries beset by labor troubles have been bombed.

War Contract Frauds Facing Inquiry, Rep. Bender Says

By The Associated Press

Representative Bender (R., Ohio) said yesterday "fraud and overpayments" running into millions had been found in war contract settlements and his House subcommittee will investigate.

Bender asserted that the Justice Department has "failed to prosecute" 93 fraud cases referred to it and a report on disposition of these cases has been asked by the Expenditures Subcommittee of which he is chairman.

The Congressman told a news conference that public hearings will begin September 9. The first witness will be Comptroller General Lindsay C. Warren as the subcommittee takes up his report to Congress on "fraud in the termination of war contracts," Bender said.

Inventories Misrepresented

The chairman said he has asked Warren also to report on all cases of contract overpayment which have turned up in audits by the General Accounting Office which Warren heads.

"Overpayments, where evidence of intent to defraud the Government has not been established, are not now reported to Congress," Bender explained.

He said the General Accounting Office "has found evidence of fraud and overpayment in more than 5 per cent of all the cases which it has audited under the Contract Settlement Act.

"Fraud in contract termination settlements," Bender went on, "has included misrepresentation on the value of inventories, the rebilling of the Government for the same inventories in more than one settlement, the resale or use in commercial production of inventories purchased by the contractors from the Government as scrap, and overcharges by means of fake accounting practices.

Reports 147 Cases

"As of June 30, 1947, a total of 147 cases of fraud in contract terminations have been referred to the Justice Department by the General Accounting Office and by contracting agencies directly," he added.

"The General Accounting Office has examined 1½ per cent of war contract terminations—4789 out of about 318,000. The office has thus far found fraud in 79 cases involving two million dollars. It has also found evidence of fraud in 57 additional settlements which it is investigating further. It found 120 cases involving overpayments amounting to $4,350,000.

The subcommmittee has asked the Justice Department for a full report on disposition of 93 fraud cases referred to them by the General Accounting Office and other agencies which the department has failed to prosecute."

Bender said that he and Senator Brewster (R., Me.) had agreed that the inquiry will not conflict with activities of the Senate War Investigating Committee, headed by Brewster.

Senator Predicts 'Bloody Gang War' in Calif.

By the United Press

Senator Sheridan Downey (D., Calif.) warned last night that California is heading for a "bloody gang war" that will make the Capone era in Chicago look like a garden tea party.

He told reporters that "gamblers, racketeers and blackmailers," attracted by the "lush life" of the Hollywood motion picture colony and oil industry barons, are streaming into California from all parts of the country.

Contending that "these underworld characters" undoubtedly were striving to seize control of the State police force and to "take over politics," he said he has evidence that some of them already are "entrenched with some State authorities."

Appeals To Governor

He said a solution rests primarily with the State and called on Gov. Earl Warren and State Attorney General Fred M. Howser, both Republicans, to take forcible and immediate steps to "combat this menace."

In Los Angeles, Howser said:

"If Senator Downey has any evidence, instead of popping off, he should submit it to my office or to Governor Warren."

Downey said the gangland slaying of Benjamin (Bugsey) Siegel, who was ambushed and killed in the lavish Hollywood home of his girl friend, Virginia Hill, was only a starter.

Unless State authorities "move in fast," he said, the State will witness a wave of gang wars and slayings that will even outshine the roaring 20s when the late "Scarface" Al Capone ruled the Chicago underworld with an iron hand.

Drawn by Wealth

Downey said the large-scale migration of blackmailers, racketeers and gamblers to the West Coast has been verified in part by confidential records of the Federal Government.

He mentioned no specific California cities other than Hollywood but said the "tremendous wealth" of the motion picture industry and the State's oil enterprises apparently were the "drawing cards."

The Federal Government, he said, can step in only when Federal statutes are violated. Income tax evasion or violation of the narcotics code would have to be proved, he said.

But he indicated that Federal authorities may move in if it can be shown that any of the underworld characters are drifting in from Mexico or other foreign countries.

Third Degree

In its protest to the District Commissioners against third degree police methods the Washington Chapter of Americans for Democratic Action hews right to the point. "Penologists all agree," the ADA states, "that third degree measures do not deter crime, nor do they constitute a trustworthy means of eliciting the truth." These are facts that cannot well be challenged. We hope that they will help stir the Commissioners into action of a more definite sort than what heretofore has consisted primarily of thunderous pronouncements against sin.

The implied focal point of the ADA letter is the Clegg case. In this a Negro employe of The Washington Post, Julius W. Clegg, allegedly was beaten by police after being arrested without warrant. It is imperative, in justice to the many members of the Police Department who have no part in roughhouse tactics, that there be prompt action in accordance with the evidence, as it now appears there will be. Beyond and entirely aside from the immediate issue of punishment of the offenders, however, the Clegg case and the ADA letter open a whole new vista for study in the relationship between police and the Negro citizens of the community. The relationship now, to say the least, is not one of mutual confidence.

This was illustrated graphically to our mind by a recent Washington Post poll on attitudes toward the new gun-toting law, which gives police authority to search for weapons on probable cause without a warrant. This particular poll is one of the few instances in which a marked difference in response is found among different racial groups. Whereas 76 per cent of white citizens questioned approved the law, only 45 per cent of the Negroes favored it. Only 19 per cent of the white citizens definitely disapproved of it, while 54 per cent of the Negroes registered their dissatisfaction. It is easy to ascribe reasons for this breakdown from some of the spontaneous comments of the persons polled. Many Negroes feared that the law might lead to personal humiliation and abuse of innocent persons. Why? Because among many Negroes, whether for real or fancied reasons, there is a feeling that they do not receive just treatment at the hands of police.

That this attitude prevails among a large segment of our population is of concern to all citizens because of its effect on the crime rate. There have been many indications, for instance, that Negroes often are reluctant to report crimes to the police, first, because of their fear of personal abuse, and second, because Negro crimes against Negroes seldom receive the same attention as do crimes in which white persons are involved. It is not difficult to see that this situation leads to a disrespect for the law that ultimately affects everyone.

Once such a situation has been allowed to arise, it is not so easy to correct it. Reestablishing confidence is a long-time proposition. One immediate salutary step, however, would be to eliminate police brutality and the fear of brutality. This, coupled with an added effort at common civility, would go a long way to prove to Negroes that they may expect equal protection under the law. We think that the indicated current distrust of Negroes for the police warrants serious official attention. An investigation by a group of disinterested citizens might uncover some highly pertinent facts as to the cause of the crime rate.

Hartley's Tactics

Representative Hartley denounces union attempts to bypass the new labor law as "brazen effrontery." And he intends to ask the Joint Congressional Committee appointed to check the operation of the law to investigate violations of the spirit as well as the letter of that law. Abusive language and threats of this kind are calculated to stiffen opposition to the law by strengthening the conviction of labor leaders that it was framed with the deliberate intention of undermining the unions. Moreover, the usefulness of the Joint Congressional Committee appointed to study the law with a view to discovering and correcting its weaknesses and defects would be seriously impaired, possibly destroyed, if it were detailed to undertake special inquiries to support Mr. Hartley's charges.

Mr. Hartley himself believes that when union members understand the law, there will be a revulsion against the policies of labor leaders who are seeking to circumvent it. We agree with that view, for labor unions failing to comply with legal requirements for certification as bargaining agencies will lose various valuable privileges and some uncertified unions may find themselves deprived of their present bargaining rights. Under the circumstances, it is the part of wisdom to assume a wait-and-see attitude, allowing time for reconsideration of hasty, ill-advised union actions and for court tests of obscure and controversial provisions of the law.

Ferment In Greece

The most important fact to keep in mind about the upset in the Greek cabinet is that it opens the door to changes in line with the American program of helping Greece maintain her independence. There is not the slightest indication that the State Department or the United States mission in Greece precipitated the shake-up. But there is unmistakable evidence that this country is in sympathy with the liberal elements that brought to a climax the increasing friction in the cabinet. And it is reasonable to suppose that American influence is now being employed to secure the type of cabinet that will be able to end the civil war, restore order and begin the all-important work of reconstruction in Greece.

American policy in Greece has as its chief objective the maintenance of independence for the Greek nation and people. That policy has never contemplated an underwriting of the ultra-conservative regime of Premier Maximos and Foreign Minister Tsaldaris. Indeed, a sharp modification of that regime was implicit in the American aid program from the beginning; for the independence of Greece can be saved only by the restoration of order and peace, along with reconstruction that will make living conditions tolerable for the Greek people, and these changes can be brought about only by a government in which a great majority of the people have confidence. The present manifestation of weakened confidence in the Maximos-Tsaldaris regime came directly from Greek circles, but it is unquestionably shared by the State Department and a vast majority of Americans who are interesting themselves in the problem.

The immediate cause of the split in the Greek cabinet was the failure of the Athens government to restore order. It has neither mobilized enough strength to stop the civil war nor enough appeal to one considerable section of the population to win it away from the guerillas who are playing the Communist game. The most astute observers on the scene believe that the civil war can be ended promptly only by assuring the rebels of political amnesty, by restoring civil rights and by releasing the Republican leaders who have been jailed or exiled solely for political reasons. What is more important, the continuation of American aid can be assured only by putting measures of this sort into effect. All Greece must know that we have not voted 350 million dollars to back policies akin to fascism. Having welcomed our aid, Greece must now put her house in order as a member of the democratic world community.

The present cabinet shake-up is a hopeful sign because it discloses a rising sentiment within Greece for these reforms. Of course, there is resistance from entrenched Royalist politicians. But even these men ought to be able to foresee how dismal would be the predicament of their country and themselves if the American-Greek experiment should fail. The chief danger seems to be that the old-line leaders will temporize, order a few patches in the cabinet and try to go ahead. But such efforts on the part of Tsaldaris in trying to form a new cabinet are fortunately meeting with resistance.

We think the situation calls for drastic measures. It calls for the delegation of responsibility to such men as Gen. Nicholas Plastiras who appears to have the confidence of all groups except the extremists. Certainly, too, it calls for a new election as soon as order can be restored and sufficient reforms instituted to give the rank and file full confidence that their voice can and will be accurately recorded at the polls. This aspect of the saving of Greece is no less important than the halting of Communist attacks across the borders. For independence and democracy must have a favorable climate in which to grow. Without such a climate, the hope of saving Greece from absorption into the Communist orbit or domination from other foreign sources would be nil.

Greenbelt Cooperative

More heat than light appears to have been shed on the question whether cooperatives are harmful to free enterprise in the opening hearings last week before a House Small Business Subcommittee. Representative Ploeser, chairman of the full committee, had previously stated that the probe was to be directed at examination of the tax advantages enjoyed by cooperatives, many of which are entirely exempt from Federal income taxation. Unquestionably these privileges have in some instances operated to the detriment of private competing business units, and led to formation of pseudo-cooperatives as a means of tax avoidance. Hence there is good reason for initiating an inquiry to determine the extent to which the tax privileges of cooperatives are a competitive handicap to fully taxed private businesses.

However, the inquiry which got under way last week dealt with a side issue that has no direct bearing on the alleged purpose of the probe. For the time was devoted to airing charges that the consumer cooperative serving the Government-owned Greenbelt housing project is a monopoly sponsored by the Government which has given it the exclusive right to operate businesses within the area. The subcommittee by a 2-to-1 vote subsequently recommended that immediate steps be taken to cancel the "monopolistic contract" between the Federal Public Housing Authority and the Greenbelt Cooperative.

It is true, as one witness pointed out, that exclusive privileges are granted to various businesses in housing projects developed by private enterprise. But the occupants of such projects usually have easy access to competing establishments, whereas Greenbelt residents are rather remote from other population centers, with the result that the local cooperative occupies a semimonopolistic position not unlike that of the old country store that serves contiguous farming areas. We conclude, therefore, that the hearing has exposed a mistake made by the Government in not opening the Greenbelt area to competing firms. But this is all that the testimony offered by critics of the licensed cooperative discloses: it neither proves nor disproves charges that cooperatives are less efficient than privately owned enterprises or dependent upon tax advantages in order to meet the competition of noncooperative concerns. Regardless of the form taken by the licensed organization, its protected position would have aroused hostility and brought complaints of inadequate service.

Carusi's Job

In transferring Ugo Carusi to the State Department to concentrate on the "critical problems" of the displaced persons, President Truman has given the plight of the DPs the recognition which its seriousness merits. The whole issue has been shunted around out of a desire to avoid action. Congress adjourned without even getting the Stratton bill out of committee, and the International Refugee Organization, which is to function as an agency of the United Nations, still is inoperative for want of ratification. Meanwhile the DP situation is getting no better, and it affects us equally with other nations. To doom 850,000 or more of these people to a permanent existence as vagrants, as they are fast becoming, would be to create, if not a threat to the peace, at least a decivilizing influence in Europe.

Mr. Carusi's appointment as assistant to the Assistant Secretary of State for Occupied Areas indicates the continuing concern of the executive branch of the Government for this unrelieved hangover of the war. Himself born in Italy of naturalized American parents, Mr. Carusi is particularly well qualified to understand the problem. As Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization he displayed the broad humanitarian comprehension so necessary for a solution. Precisely what Mr. Carusi can do without help from Congress is not so clear. One of his tasks reportedly is to make a survey of DP conditions and of what little resettlement has been accomplished. Though such a report will be valuable, one would think that we already had had enough such surveys. The evidence is plain. What we hope Mr. Carusi can devise now is some means of utilizing our immigration laws so that existing quotas can be filled expeditiously before Congress is asked again to take action on adjustments.

An additional service Mr. Carusi can do is to stress not so much what we can do for the DPs as what they can do for us. People are wealth. In the DPs is a great reservoir of skills that, brought to bear in this country, would create a whole range of new opportunities and enrich the entire Nation. Most of the DPs do not want a dole; they want merely a chance to earn normal livelihoods. The essential thing is to open the door before discouragement eats them away into permanently embittered charges on humanity. By presenting the facts to Congress—facts which the numerous committees in Europe this summer can verify from experience—perhaps Mr. Carusi can impress a sense of urgency upon the legislators.

The Petkov Case

The United States Government has gone over the head of the Russian representative on the Allied Control Commission for Bulgaria to protest directly to the Kremlin against the sentence of death passed on Nikola Petkov, leader of the Bulgarian Peasant Party. The protest was made through Ambassador Smith at Moscow. Meanwhile General Robertson, American representative on the Control Commission, renewed his efforts to obtain the intervention of that body into the case, despite the opposition of Lieutenant General Cherepanov, acting chairman of the commission. General Robertson is said to be supported by Colonel Green, the British representative. Meanwhile, the report of the subsidiary group of the Balkan Investigating Commission of the United Nations has denounced the Communist regime at Sofia for its total lack of cooperation.

All these developments have, of course, intensified the crisis which for the moment has its center in Greece. It is possible that the Communist hierarchy may decide in the circumstances that some minor concessions are expedient at this time, and the life of Petkov may be one of them; though it is, at best, a slender hope. The Communist practice of liquidating, as soon as they come into power, all actually or potentially dangerous political opponents is now so familiar that even their fellow travelers abroad no longer bother to deny it, but merely seek to justify it on grounds of "realism." Nevertheless, there are situations where local or international circumstances make it politic to postpone the liquidations, as for example in the case of Mikolajczyk in Poland.

However, the point that the trial and sentencing of Petkov was merely one of innumerable flagrant violations of the Potsdam agreement committed under the Russian aegis will have no weight whatever with the Kremlin. It is in fact merely the sequel to the earlier and even more outrageous violation of the agreement when about two dozen members of Petkov's party were expelled from the Bulgarian Parliament. Nor is it without significance that the present Communist Prime Minister of Bulgaria is no other than the celebrated Comrade Dimitrov, former secretary of the Comintern, and one of those who signed the order for the dissolution of that international conspiratorial agency as a pledge of the good faith of the Communist leaders in their promise to abandon their program for the domination of the world.

Liberalism Applied

What our Nation needs just now is a new birth of true liberalism. I would define liberalism as "willingness to see and act upon all the facts before forming an opinion."

The Letters to the Editor column in The Washington Post serves a double purpose: It permits free expression of the public mind, but it reveals also the highly superficial character of much supposed information. A recent investigation by competent and unbiased authorities revealed a situation in Yugoslavia which, in principle, illustrates much which we have served us at our breakfast tables for reliable information from newspaper reports. The individual newspaper is not to be criticized as careless, but those who are responsible for giving out the truth have betrayed their trust. A man who looks down his back alley and from that viewpoint writes of the character of the architecture of Washington City, may be writing what he sees, but certainly he is not giving the whole truth on what he assumes to write about.

Our international situation is muddled because those who write and speak have seldom seen or known the facts which justify an opinion. Did any one ever hear of a Christian missionary speaking in a derogatory manner of the people with whom he or she has sojourned for years? Whether it be Turkey, Russia, China, Japan, Egypt, or the countries of South America, the invariable reaction of the missionary is: "If you knew the real people of the nation and not the few political leaders who are exercising for the time authority and assuming to say what the nation desires, you would not judge the nation as you do."

How do we feel to hear that even many countries of Europe, not to mention the others more "foreign," judge our social and even our religious ideals by the cheap film representations of American life shown them? Those who speak and write and those who publish must join hearts in a crusade to secure all available facts before a public presentation is made. A gigantic task, but every move in that direction is for world betterment.

Apply the above principle to the Palestine problem, to the Russian mixup, to the labor question, to sabotage and violence whether in Palestine or in the Southland of our own country, and see if we do not make fish of one thing and fowl of another through our failure to be liberals.

Same-Day Marketing

In your issue of August 9, there was an article by the marketing department of Maryland University concerning a program to have the local farmers get up at 3 a. m. to pick their corn so it could be marketed the same day, with the dew still on it.

We all agree with the idea that we should get fresher vegetables in Washington than has ever been possible, and we realize that corn loses sugar very rapidly from the time it is picked until it is consumed, especially during the first 10 or 12 hours, after which it has but little to lose. But why should the grower get up at 3 a. m. to pick corn we are not going to eat in most cases till 5:30 to 6 p. m.? Doesn't it stand to reason that corn would have more sugar if picked around 9 to 11 a. m. and delivered to the store around noon?

I would like to ask why limit the program to corn. I'm sure that most people will agree that all perishable vegetables are better the day they are picked than later. Of course, this whole idea would require the farmer to take his produce to the stores and sell it himself. There seems to be a philosophy in this area that he should not do that. I don't know whether it is unethical or, as some have suggested, he hasn't time.

I have plead for marketing the same day produce was picked since 1917. In 1922, in helping a strawberry grower market his berries, every Monday I waited for my load of berries to be picked. The rest of the week I had the berries picked the day before. The merchants on Monday would tell me if they had that kind of berries all the time they could really sell berries.

Employe Fingerprinting

There is one aspect of the Federal workers' loyalty probe which has my curiosity aroused.

For many years, at least since 1940, Federal workers have been fingerprinted upon entering duty. It was my understanding that these fingerprints were sent to the FBI for checking and filing. Now, if my understanding of recent stories is correct, all of these Federal workers are to be fingerprinted again on a new form.

What happened to the fingerprints already taken? If the FBI files have already been searched for these fingerprints, is it necessary that they be searched again? If they were not searched, or if it is thought necessary that they be searched again, why cannot the previous fingerprints be used for this purpose?

Veterans' Housing

My sister in Alexandria has sent a clipping of a letter in your paper of April 26 in which a Mr. Herbert U. Nelson, head of a national real estate association, goes for altitude on housing. He is quoted as saying that the rapid expansion of building at this time shows there is no need of any program of Federal housing.

It is bunk like that which makes veterans cynical about the honesty of private enterprise. I was living in a temporary housing project for 14 months because if Uncle Sam hadn't set them up, I'd have been on a park bench.

My two brothers still are thus housed in Philadelphia. Our Evening Bulletin reported there were 30,000 evictions in 1946 and a total of 40,000 are expected by the end of this year. Junk built houses here which sold for $6600 in 1940 are now offered at $13,000. Nice treatment of vets.

Judge Raedy's Car

Could you tell me, please, why Judge Raedy was given, according to your paper, some 24 hours or longer to tell who was driving her car, which was involved in a hit-and-run accident? Surely she knew who had her car or who was supposed to have it. This business smells a little from a point of view of the citizens not connected with politics or the chosen few of the District. An ordinary citizen would probably have been hauled down to one of the precincts and questioned until he told all.

"Basing Point"

Your editorial of August 21 sallying into the legal and economic theory of the basing point system, is hardly convincing. In a number of cases the basing point system, by collusion, has been utilized as an essential facet of a price fixing structure. My own trial of the anti-trust action against the sugar refining industry disclosed one such concerted plan.

With heavy industries freight is an important factor in ultimate price. Without passing judgment on the steel case, one can readily see that where this important price element remains static on an artificial basis, price fixing is simplified. Indeed, the "mystery in price leadership, especially in heavy goods" is much clarified, and the difficulties of actual price leadership are eased under such a plan.

Somewhat disturbing is the case with which you take the final step: "All the conditions of the business make for identicality in prices." It is true that with a uniform product perfect competition will tend to produce a low uniform price equivalent roughly to the production cost of the least efficient producer essential to supply the demand. But competition is so generally imperfect and buyers' information so inadequate, and their acceptance so varied, that the uniform price of perfect competition is only a theoretical result.

Actually, not this, but a higher uniform price is more likely to result where production is controlled by a few and where intelligent selfishness impels them to follow the leader. Collusion and illegality may or may not be present. The greater the number of producers the less likely this result on either basis.

Even on an individual basis an artificial basing point system gives pause. A great multiplicity of basing points heavily ameliorates the harmful results. Turning aside from the steel case and assuming a small number of basing points, we find danger. The smaller, independent producer finds his natural market invaded by the dominant concern who ships in from a distance and absorbs the freight losses. The independent's natural economic advantage of location is eliminated. Cross hauling, with its heavy economic losses and threat to the existence of the small independent producer, are the inevitable results. The public eventually absorbs these losses in artificially increased prices. And your "some kind of monopolism" may lurk around the corner.

With cross hauling, price discrimination rears its head. If the purchaser is "entitled" to anything, it is an f. o. b. price equivalent to that charged other purchasers at the same plant. To this is added the actual cost of his transportation. But if there are only a few basing points, and this purchaser is located in the shadow of the production plant, he will find that he is paying a portion of the producer's loss in shipping to another purchaser at a distance. His natural competitive advantage of location is eliminated. This burden is artificially cast upon the nearby purchaser. It is moreover precisely the same result that would be achieved if he were required to pay more for the product itself at the point of production. Price discrimination is inherent in such a limited basing point situation and actually exists to the degree that artificial "costs" are superimposed on the "uniform" base price.

With an f. o. b. price structure both the producer and the purchaser preserve the natural economic advantages inherent in location. The unnecessary losses of cross hauling are alleviated. And the public is protected from gouging by the locally dominant plant since every increase in price opens the door for the distant plant's invasion of the local market.

On Translations

GREEK PLAYS IN MODERN TRANSLATION, edited with an introduction by Dudley Fitts. (Dial Press, $5.)

Here we have versions in what might be called modern English idiom of eleven masterpieces of classical tragedy—three from Aeschylus and four each from Sophocles and Euripides. Thus it affords barely more than an introduction to Greek dramatic literature, as compared to two volume edition of The Complete Greek Drama, edited by Whitney J. Oates and Eugene O'Neill, jr., which contains, besides all the extant works of the three great Greek tragedians, all the surviving comedies of Aristophanes and the less fragmentary relics of Menander. On technical points of bookmaking the present anthology also suffers by the comparison; for while the format is well-designed and the typesetting and presswork are good, the paper is of no great quality and the blue denim binding none too sturdy. Thus the whole advantage of this volume over the Oates-O'Neill collection, or over the Loeb Library series, though it is to be sure an important one, lies in the greater sensibility and intelligence that guided Mr. Fitts in the selection of the translations. The result is a book admirably suited to readers who have neither enough Greek to wrestle with the originals nor enough heroism to endure the archaistic jargon of the standard translators.

The error of those translators was in attempting the impossible; that is, they strove to find some means of conveying in English the rhetorical exaltation they found in their texts. Perhaps they were also seeking to preserve, by the device of archaic language, some of the liturgical atmosphere of the dramas, for to the Greeks of course the performance had the character of sacred rites for which special archaic vestments were prescribed. Anyway, whatever their motives, the translators failed, partly because they were scholars rather than artists, and partly because the English language itself had become too sober and set in its ways to admit the success of such experiments. Thus many passages in Professor Murray's versions of Sophocles and Euripides read like the imitations of Shakespeare that used to be written by sophomores for the college quarterlies, and I dare say old John Lyly himself might have blushed for some of the extravagances of Sir Richard C. Jebb. Mr. Fitts in his anger goes so far as to blame this "killing artificiality" for the evil days into which classical scholarship has fallen; certainly it has not helped to remove the apathy to classical literature which is now well-nigh universal among all readers below 40. One might infer, says Mr. Fitts indignantly, the existence of rigid conventions for the translation of classical texts, and he goes on to describe them as follows: "For serious prose imitate the Bible and Sir Thomas Browne; for poetry, mix Swinburne with Shelley in lyric passages, assorted Elibabethans in the dramatic."

But perhaps the point is best illustrated by quotation; here, then, is a sample of one of the windy, old-fashioned blank verse renderings of Euripides, borrowed from a text-book employed some years ago in the literature class of a school for young ladies. The translator is Michael Wodhull and the lines are from the introduction to the Medea, as spoken by the Nurse.

Ah, would to heaven the Argo ne'er had urged
Its rapid voyage to the Colchan strand
'Twixt the Cyanean rocks, nor had the pine
Been fell'd in Pelion's forest, nor the hands
Of those illustrious chiefs, who that famed bark
For royal Pelius plied the stubborn oar,
So on to Iolcos' turrets had my Queen
Medea never sailed, her soul with love
For Jason smitten . . .

Contrast this high-flown language and the stilted measures with the prose of Mr. Frederic Prokosch, whose version of the Medea is included in the present collection.

Oh, how I wish that famous ship, the Argo, never had made its way through the blue Symplegades to the land of Colchis! How I wish the pine tree never had been felled in the glades of Pelion, and never had been hewn into oars for the heroes who went to fetch the Golden Fleece for Pelias! For then my mistress, Medea, would never have sailed to the towers of the land of Iolcos, her heart on fire with love for Jason!

There is of course no question of scholarship involved here; the difference is merely between a natural and an unnatural idiom.

I much regret that Mr. Fitts did not see fit to include Miss Edith Hamilton's version of The Trojan Women of Euripides, which I read several times in the war days, and never without being deeply moved. He has chosen instead a version by Mr. Richmond Lattimore. Miss Hamilton, however, is represented by the Prometheus Bound of Aeschylus. Two of the translations, the Antigone of Sophocles and the Alcestis of Euripides, are the work of Mr. Fitts himself in collaboration with Mr. Robert Fitzgerald. The other choices are Mr. Richmond's Agamemnon (Aeschylus); Mr. Francis Ferguson's Electra (Sophocles); Mr. David Green's Hippolytus (Euripides); Mr. George Thompson's Eumenides (Aeschylus); Yeats' well-known King Oedipus (Sophocles); Mr. Fitzgerald's Oedipus at Colonus (Sophocles) and the work of Mr. Prokosch on the Medea, already mentioned.

Vanished 'One World'

By Andre Visson

Report On Europe: III

THOUGHTFUL and responsible western Europeans have never been able to understand the American conception of One World. The idea of a world government has appeared to them as a kind of American fantasy. They simply do not understand how such an idea can even be discussed while no more than 20 or 25 per cent of the people of the world live under democratic regimes.

This is why they also reject, as impractical, the idea of a United States of Europe. The only ideal which they consider as being within reach, under present circumstances, is a United States of Western Europe. And they hope the Marshall Plan will be the stimulus for the achievement of that goal.

But even the most ardent advocates of a United States of Western Europe are not too happy about the conditions under which the western European bloc is coming to life. They would have preferred to see it established right after the end of the European war, when there was still hope that Soviet Russia would cooperate with the Western world.

But, at that time, the project of a western European bloc, strongly advocated by Belgium's Paul-Henri Spaak, found little favor in Washington. American policy makers were afraid such a bloc would be an obstacle to better understanding with Russia. And the French were similarly hostile to that idea because of the illusion nourished then by them, that they might become the great mediators between the democratic capitalist West and the totalitarian Communist East.

Had that bloc been established early in 1946, it would have appeared as a more constructive proposition than it does today. Now it is primarily a defensivve proposition. Just as the United Nations were formed by neither Roosevelt nor Churchill, but by Hitler, so the western European bloc has been brought to life by neither Truman nor Secretary Marshall, but by Stalin's and Motolov's "No" to all American and western European proposals for constructive cooperation.

"Cooperation with Soviet Russia unfortunately proved to be impossible. Let us now try a coexistence with Soviet Russia and hope for the best." Those words of Paul-Henri Spaak, Belgian Premier and Foreign Minister, sum up the feelings of practically all western European statesmen. Western Europe realizes the necessity for making not only a supreme effort toward its economic organization but also its last attempt to get along with Soviet Russia, despite the Soviet unwillingness to cooperate.

This is the spirit in which western Europe approaches the Marshall Plan. In the hearts of its statesmen, there still is a slight hope that, should western Europe succeed in organizing itself both economically and politically, Soviet leaders might, at the last moment, make up their minds and change their obstructive attitude.

ONLY A FEW people know that the idea of an economic unification of Europe—and this on much broader lines than suggested by the Marshall Plan—was envisaged early in 1946 by France's elderly statesman, Leon Blum. Before coming to Washington in the summer of 1946 to negotiate the American loan to France, Leon Blum went to London. His purpose was to find out whether his old-time Socialist friends, Atlee and Morrison, would be willing to discuss with him the idea of pooling all the economic resources of Europe and presenting to the United States a common European front of applicants for American loans.

Blum believed that once all the nations concerned would have their loan requests approved by American experts, these nations should form a kind of "Europe, Inc." The total amount of American loan would be distributed among its members at a rate previously agreed upon. Bonds issued by "Europe, Inc." and guaranteed for the amount of the total loan, would be offered to the American public and even to those Europeans who had transferred their bank accounts to the Western Hemisphere or to Switzerland. The European capital which fled Europe because of political and social uncertainties would thus participate in Europe's reconstruction under the safeguard of an American guarantee.

However, to his regret, M. Blum found that the British were in such a need of dollars that they had to draw on the $3,750,000,000 loan they had just received from the United States, because they could not afford a delay of six or 12 months indispensable for the realization of Blum's plan. One cannot help feeling that Blum's idea found an echo in the Marshall Plan, now offered to Europe as her last chance to organize herself and to survive.

WHILE FINANCIAL and economic experts are arduously working to prepare a survey of Western Europe's needs and possibilities, Western European diplomats do not conceal their worries about the many obstacles to the Marshall Plan. These are twofold. First, Western Europeans must coordinate their conflicting economic interests and make a proper discrimination between their urgent needs and their long-range requirements. Second, they will have to cover Western Europe's most urgent needs before Congress meets to discuss Europe's answer to the Marshall Plan. Furthermore, Europeans know that it will be no easy task for the Truman Administration to secure the approval of the Marshall Plan by Congress in the election year.

Finally, western Europeans have a worry of a psychological nature. They have never been able to understand America's interest in eastern European affairs. They understand America's advancing money to Greece and Turkey, in order to help these strategically important countries to resist the Soviet pressure and expansion. But they fail to understand why Americans take so closely to their hearts the fate of other eastern European peoples. They believe that the American desire to improve the political conditions in the countries lying behind the "iron curtain" is due mainly to the pressure exerted upon Senators and Congressmen by Americans of eastern European descent.

IT IS HARD to convince western Europeans that, in addition to these "practical political considerations," many Americans feel strongly and sincerely that they are "their brothers' keepers," regardless of whether their "brothers" live in western or eastern Europe. A certain western European statesman, whose anti-Soviet feelings cannot be questioned and who has been extremely successful in blocking the Communist influence in his own country, exclaimed to this writer: "But we do not want you to fight an ideological war!" It would be useless to explain to him that his attitude would only shock Americans and be regarded here as selfish and almost immoral.

In a Europe which has been unable to develop anything similar to the spirit of cooperation which is so typical of the American people, Western Europeans, who for centuries have lived a life different from that of Eastern Europeans, accept as almost inevitable, if not natural, the fact that the latter, who had lived before the war under absolutist or authoritarian regimes, are now obliged to live under a totalitarian regime imposed upon them from abroad.

Western Europeans see very clearly the community of their own interests with those of the United States. It is much harder for them to realize the community of their interests with those of Eastern Europe. Paradoxically enough, one needs to return to the United States in order to discover this broader community of European interests of which so few Western Europeans are aware.

Reveille For Opium Eaters

THUS FAR, THIS COUNTRY has gone through the world economic crisis like a Nation in a dream—an opium dream of peace, plenty and pleasure. A single fact should be sufficient to arouse even the most torpid.

When Sir Wilfrid Eady and his colleagues of the British delegation made their presentation at the Treasury last week, they warned the Americans across the table that without immediate aid, Britain would be forced to pull out of Germany. This was no trifling nonsense about being unable to pay the full British share of German occupation costs. It was a despairing report of a despairing decision by a despairing British Cabinet. And the decision was to get out of Germany bag and baggage, troops, administrators and mimeograph forms, if the price of staying there was to be starvation for the British people.

Such was the inward seriousness of the British crisis. When Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder heard of the Cabinet's decision, even that highly unimaginative official quaked in his banker's boots. And well he might quake.

The British withdrawal from Germany, fortunately only conditionally projected, and now put off, would have openly proclaimed the disastrous effects of the three vices of American policy—being too little, too late and too loud.

IT WOULD ALSO have faced the American policy-makers, all unprepared as they are, with a grim choice. That choice would have been between doubling our own German occupation burden, in men as well as money, in order to take over the British zone; or simply surrendering western Germany, and therefore the control of Europe, to the Soviet Union. It would, in short, have been completely catastrophic.

It must be understood, moreover, that nothing has really been solved by last week's simple act of releasing the British Treasury from its obligation to pay out dollars for pounds. The exchange of letters between Secretary Snyder and Chancellor of the Exchequer Hugh Dalton merely halted the run on the bank. After any run on a bank, however, the bank must somehow be restored to solvency if it is to continue in business.

The just-finished Anglo-American crisis talks have rather strikingly failed to restore the British bank to solvency. Two things have happened, one negative, one positive. On the negative side, no way seems yet to have been found to relax the loan agreement's trading clauses. That means the British cannot yet conserve their dwindling dollars by channeling their purchases to soft money areas. On the positive side, the remaining balance of the British loan—400 million dollars—has been frozen by our Government. This is a vital fact. It is hardly apparent through the murky bureaucrats' English of the Dalton-Snyder correspondence, yet sure to provoke the most bitter reaction in London.

Curiously enough, the State Department representatives were responsible for freezing the loan balance. They argued that if the terms of the loan agreement were to be suspended, the rest of the loan should cease to be available until a final settlement. The freezing is of course only temporary, pending further discussion. It was done, furthermore, after the British had been permitted to draw down or earmark approximately 450 million dollars of the balance of the loan which was still outstanding when the Treasury talks began. But Secretary Snyder, who was on the whole willing to terminate convertibility without resort to freezing, seems to have been made wiser than the State Department by the sudden shock of Sir Wilfrid Eady's news.

For a final verdict, it is necessary to await the outcome of the resumed Anglo-American talks. These will begin again when Snyder goes to London next month. Meanwhile, three crucial facts are already causing the American policy-makers to toss and turn in their troubled bed.

FIRST, SOMETHING must still be done about the German problem. Some months ago, by one of those empty triumphs of haggling which delight our negotiators, we got the British to pay half the dollar bill for the merged Anglo-American zones. It did not matter that the money was ours, coming from our loan, or that the British plainly could not afford it. Now that the chickens have come home to roost, however, this triumph must be foregone. Any British cabinet in its senses, having to choose between feeding Germans and feeding their own people, will put their own people first. That is the present situation. It is still entirely possible that the cabinet, harried and rendered neurotic by their plight, will suddenly decide to abandon Germany entirely.

But if we move quickly and generously to adjust the dollar burden in Germany, the British can certainly be induced to continue their occupation. We will pay the bill in dollars. They will keep the men in the field. It will be a good bargain for us, and for them.

Second, and third, the balance of the loan will eventually have to be unfrozen, and despite Undersecretary of State Will Clayton's passionate attachment to free trade principles, the trading clauses of the loan agreement are going to have to be revised. Here again, the choice is almost certainly between making a sensible bargain with the British, and seeing them do something extreme on their own.

Take it all in all, the time when we can no longer avoid facing the facts of life and dealing with them, is getting closer and closer. We have already heard about the bees and the flowers. Still more surprising information will shortly be imparted by our teacher, who is history.

Bank Earnings Rise, Capital Declines in '46

By The Associated Press

The Nation's insured banks chalked up the highest earnings on record in 1946, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. reported yesteday, but their "capital cushion has declined to an alarming extent."

The banks have disposed of or charged off practically all the substandard assets held when FDIC was created in 1934, the agency's annual report for 1946 said. This housecleaning was made possible by the high rate of business activity.

Prosperity conditions also brought a much more rapid growth of assets and of deposits than of capital, FDIC stated, so that the protective cushion of capital has declined to 6.4 per cent of all assets.

"New capital stock should be sold to the public to hasten the accumulation of capital commensurate with the added risks which banks are assuming in meeting the loan needs of business and individuals," the corporation recommended.

Net Profits Decline

"The excellent (bank) earnings of the past three years should prove sufficient inducement for the investing public to purchase bank stocks."

While earnings of insured commercial banks rose 15 per cent to a new high, the aggregate of net profits after taxes declined fractionally to 902 million dollars, or four million dollars less than the record year 1945. The net profit was 10 per cent of total capital, and the slight decline was explained by the charging-off of substandard assets.

On the other hand a greater number of banks topped a 10 per cent net profit than ever before—65 per cent of all banks, compared with 55 per cent in 1945, 37 per cent in 1943 and 23 per cent in 1938.

"In 1946, for the second consecutive calendar year, no bank depositor experienced a loss as a result of banking difficulties," the report stated. "No insured bank has been placed in receivership since May, 1944."

Ready to Repay

Because of the Federal debt retirement program, the volume of Government securities held by banks declined.

In its 13-year life, FIC reported it has paid out about 300 million dollars to protect 1,300,00 depositors in 399 banks which needed aid.

"The corporation's ultimate loss on these transactions as expected to be less than 29 million dollars," it was forecast.

The agency's original capital of 289 million dollars has grown to a net worth of $1,058,000,000. FDIC reported it is now taking steps to begin repaying to the Treasury the oginal capital investment.

In a word of caution, the FDIC noted:

"During the past four years, business failures in general have been few and only 10 banks were closed because of financial difficulties . . . But with the return of peacetime conditions, business operations are subject to more normal risks. . . ."

Dividends of 299 million dollars were called conservative. The payments came to one third of the net profits and 3.3 per cent of all capital accounts.

Per Capita Income in Nation Reaches New Peak During '46

The per capita income of individuals in the United States reached a new peak of $1200 in 1946, the Department of Commerce reported yesterday.

The District of Columbia, with $1569, had the third highest per capita income in the Nation, exceeded only by Nevada's $1703 and New York State's $1633.

Maryland's per capita income was listed as $1293 and Virginia's at $952.

The report placed the total income to individuals last year from wages, dividends, interest, rents, Social Security benefits, relief, pensions and from farms and unincorporated businesses at 169 billion dollars.

The 1945 total was 155 billion dollars. In 1940, it was $75,800,000,000.

The new figures place the 1946 per capita income at more than double the $575 income per man, woman and child in 1940 and 9 per cent higher than that of the previous year.

The per capita ranged from Nevada's top to $555 in Mississippi.

Gains of 10 to 12 per cent over 1945 were shown in the New England, Central, Middle East and Northwestern regions. In the Far West, Southwest and Southeast, where the war already had made the greatest increases in income, the 1946 rise was proportionately smaller.

The big rise in farm income last year gave these States the greatest percentage increase in total income in 1946: Iowa, 27 per cent; Montana, 20 per cent; Minnesota, 18 per cent; Wyoming, 17 per cent; North Carolina, 16 per cent, and Missouri, 15 per cent.

The District of Columbia showed an 8 per cent increase over the preceding year; Maryland, 9 per cent; and Virginia, 4 per cent.

A different group of States, however, headed the per capita income list.

Following Nevada, New York and the District in this list were: California, with $1531; New Jersey, $1494; Delaware, $1493; Illinois, $1496; and Connecticut, $1465.

Florida, Louisiana and Mississippi showed no income increases over 1945.

The report attributed this failure to curtailment of important war activities such as shipbuilding and aircraft production and military camps.

"Most strikingly revealed," said the report, "is the concentration of low-income states in the South."

Mississippi's $555 was the lowest per capita income, and all 15 of the southern states were among the 16 states with the lowest averages. West Virginia, in the middle eastern group, was the 16th.

In total income, District of Columbia increased 92 per cent over 1940 and 8 per cent over 1945. The percentage increase over 1940 was the third smallest, dwarfed only by Delaware, 80 per cent, and Massachusetts, 90, largely because total income already was relatively high here in 1940.

The total income for the District was 905 million dollars in 1940, $1,607,000,000 in 1945 and $1,736,000 in 1946. The District's per capita income was $369 more than that for the Nation as a whole. The 1940 per capita here was $1080, last year $1569.

Maryland's total individual income was reported as $2,716,000,000 in 1946, compared to $2,501,000,000 in 1945 and $1,222,000,000 in 1940. The figures represent a 122 per cent increase over 1940 and 9 per cent over 1945.

Virginia's total individual income was listed as $2,755,000,000 in 1946, $2,648,000,000 in 1945 and $1,127,000,000 in 1940—a 144 per cent increase over 1940 and 4 per cent rise over 1945.

Maryland's per capita rose $580 over 1940, and Virginia's $502.

In the defense and war years 1940 through 1945 the biggest increases were concentrated in the South and West where munitions industries and military payments showed up strongly. In New England and the Middle East income expansion lagged in that period. In 1946, as peacetime pursuits recovered, the movement reversed.

In almost all States, however, per capita income last year exceeded wartime highs, and in three fourths of the States the per capita income was at least double the 1940 level.

Trade Plans Hit by Easing British Loan

By John Scali
Associated Press Reporter

The financial concessions granted the dollar-short British by the United States threaten to upset the Administration's carefully laid plans for expanding world commerce on an unrestricted trade basis.

Government trade experts expressed the opinion yesterday that last week's agreement permitting the British to limit the exchange of their currency may delay indefinitely plans to persuade other countries to adopt more liberal trading principles.

The right of all nations to exchange foreign currencies into any kind of money they need is a key point in the American-sponsored trade program.

"Temporary" Arrangement

As a result of the Anglo-American accord, the British need honor only part of the demands for dollars made on them by traders in other countries from whom the British buy.

This arrangement is only "temporary," but neither British nor American officials who reached the decision would venture a guess on how long it will take the British to return to free convertibility.

The United States has spoken up frequently during the past several years in favor of freer trading among other countries as a means of insuring prosperity and distributing world resources more equitably.

Trade May Falter

These principles were embodied only last Friday in a draft charter for an international trade organization approved by 17 nations after three months of intensive negotiations in Geneva.

As long as the British cannot meet all requests for dollars, these officials feel that other countries may continue the practice of concluding exclusive two-way trading agreements and shift their commerce to countries were dollars are not needed.

There is a distinct possibility that American trade will fall off, they said, because other countries that formerly got dollars from Britain to buy in the United States will be short of funds.

Aware of Danger

Officials who asked not to be quoted by name indicated the American conferees realized they might set back American trading plans when they agreed to allow the British to suspend the dollar conversion feature in the $3,750,000,000 loan. It was either a case of saying no and taking a chance that the Britsh would go brankrupt with resulting world-wide economic chaos, or excepting in the commercial blueprint now being worked out.

These officials stressed that the United States would not give up its trade principles and would watch the Britsh closely and insist upon a return to convertibility as quickly as possible.

Whangpoo River 'Monster' Terrifies Chinese Peasants

Shanghai, Aug. 24 (AP).—Villagers and peasants around Pootung, across the Whangpoo River from Shanghai, have established a day and night watch for an amphibious monster which they believe is carrying off children.

Some say the beast is half man, half ape, others say it resembles a huge wild boar.

A bamboo watchtower has been erected and is manned constantly. Volunteers also patrol the creek banks.

The English language paper, China Press, said a 30-year-old woman was killed last week by a posse which threw her into a pond when she refused to confess to any knowledge of the monster. Reasons for suspecting her were not given.

Whether children actually have vanished is uncertain, but two sets of parents, both sampan dwellers, have told of snatching their children to safety when the monster grabbed for them.

Pleased Britons Fly Home After Conference

By the United Press

Chief British delegates to the week-long Anglo-American loan conference were heading home last night, apparently satisfied that their visit was not in vain.

Sir Wilfrid Eady and other top-ranking British delegates took off for London several hours before Lord Inverchapel, the British Ambassador, returned here.

The Ambassador had cut short his honeymoon to fly here for the conference. He will work with a small group of British technical advisers who were left behind to work out final details of agreements on emergency modification of the loan. The group is expected to leave for London tonight or tomorrow.

Eady and his top assistants appeared pleased by the outcome of the talks. British sources said the delegation felt it had given high American officials a comprehensive and "indisputable" picture of the financial crisis facing dollar-starved Britain.

Peron Warns Industry, Labor To Produce More

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—President Juan D. Peron, in the last of four speeches to the nation, warned leaders of Argentine industry and labor last night that they must produce more or face punishment.

Peron threatened to fine employers if they were found guilty of deliberately reduced production and told labor leaders flately that they must put their shoulders to the wheel and produce more.

Sanctions would be applied against labor if more production was not forthcoming, Peron said.

"Those sanctions could consist of reduction of wages (for labor) and fines for employers," he said.

Doors in Nantes Bolted in Terror Of Nude 'Satyr'

Nantes, France, Aug. 24 (U.P.).—Heavily armed night police patrols were ordered increased today in an effort to capture the nude "satyr of Nantes" who has been terrorizing women and girls for the last two weeks.

Virtually all parents of Nantes have ordered their daughters to remain at home after sunset and are bolting and shuttering their houses against forced entry.

The "satyr" invaded a girls' religious institute Tuesday night, but was frightened away while attempting to strangle the mother superior. Thursday night he attacked a girl in the streets, but was frightened off by her screams.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Mine Disaster Report To Put Lewis on Limb

By Robert S. Allen

The U. S. Bureau of Mines will shortly issue a report on the July 24 mine disaster at West Frankfort, Ill., that will leave John L. Lewis dangling on one of the shakiest limbs of his turbulent career.

Lewis

Twenty-seven coal miners were killed in this tragedy caused by a gas explosion. Howard Lewis, brother of John L., is superintendent of this mine. John L. was in nearby Indianapolis when the disaster occurred, and rushed to West Frankfort, where he immediately went into a huddle with his brother and United Mine Worker and State officials.

But, despite Lewis' searing denunciation of the earlier Centralia, Ill., mine disaster as "mass murder," he was strangely placatory concerning this one.

Out of the huddle came a public pronouncement that the tragedy was "an act of God."

UMW moguls and State officials went to great lengths to whitewash the disaster. Chairman Harold Walker of the Illinois State Mining Board proclaimed that "nothing could have prevented the explosion." Hugh White, Illinois UMW president and a top Lewis lieutenant, orated, "There will always be a few explosions that could not be prevented. You can't legislate mine safety."

The Bureau of Mines report will tell an entirely different story.

It will declare the disaster could have been averted had adequate safety measures been taken. Also, that not only was the mine too gas-laden, but that "nonpermissible" equipment, such as inferior (spark-throwing) drills were used in defiance of Federal mine safety standards. Further, that "fire-bossing" inspections were wholly inadequate.

Note: Two highly pertinent facts the report will not go into are that the unsafe conditions that led to the explosion still largely prevail in the mine since its reopening; and that under both the new UMW contract with the coal operators and the Taft-Hartley Law, Lewis could close down the mine because it is unsafe. The Taft-Hartley Act specifically authorizes the union to pull its members out of a mine on that ground.

Love Feast

President Truman's bestowal of the Medal of Merit on White House Secretary David K. Niles was a two-fold sentimental event. Niles is the last of the Roosevelt staff still on the White House payroll, and the decorating ceremoney afforded the genial bachelor the opportunity to do some free-handed kissing.

At the President's invitation, a number of women were present. Among them were Civil Service Commissioner Frances Perkins, former Secretary of Labor; Freda Kirchwey, publisher of The Nation; Mrs. Francis Kelley, one-time WPA official; Mrs. Helen Alman, Census Bureau personnel director; Mrs. J. C. Capt, wife of the Census Bureau director, and Mrs. David Bazelon, wife of the alien property custodian.

After the President pinned the decoration on Niles, to the great amusement of the former, Niles started bussing the assembled ladies. There was much hilarity, but none of the ladies refused. Afterward Niles explained, "This is what you might call reverse French. The French always kiss the recipient of a decoration, so I gave the practice a new twist."

Legion Battle

The American Legion convention opening in New York today will see a hot behind-the-scenes battle over the veterans' housing issue.

The Legion's housing committee is very much on the spot with the rank and file. The committee is charged with being dominated by real estate interests, and failing to procure GI housing legislation from Congress.

This rank-and-file resentment has already manifested itself in a series of angry State crackdowns. It is unknown outside of Legion circles, but six State organizations rejected the committee's recommendations and indorsed the Taft-Ellender-Wagner housing bill, which was vigorously opposed last Congress both by the committee and the real estate lobby. The revolting States were New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Maryland, Pennsylvania and South Carolina.

In Pennsylvania, the Legionnaires thumbed their noses at the committee, despite pleas by National Commander Paul Griffiths and Senator Edward Martin. The fight was led by Walter Alessendroni, executive director of the Philadelphia Housing Authority.

Steelman Rides Again

Tall, genial Cyrus Ching is slated to take over active rule of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service immediately after Labor Day. FMCS is the former United States Conciliation Bureau which the last Congress ripped out of the Labor Department and made an independent agency.

Pending Ching's arrival, FMCS has been undergoing a convulsive behind-the-scenes reorganization.

A number of firings have taken place, among them some of the ablest and most experienced mediators. They are W. Ellison Chalmers, head of the program division; Carl Scheidler, chief of arbitration, and Fred Livingston, maritime expert.

The head lopping has been done by Howard Colvin, former assistant director whom Ching has made his deputy director.

This and the list of firings is highly significant. Colvin was made assistant director by Dr. John R. Steelman, now White House economic adviser, when he was head of the Conciliation Bureau in the Roosevelt Administration. And all of those let out by Colvin were brought into the agency by Steelman's successor.

Big question in inner Capital circles is who is running FMCS—Ching or Steelman? On the basis of what has transpired so far, it looks like Steelman is riding again.

Interesting Omission

The Congressional Directory, with self-penned biographical sketches of Members of Congress, is published twice yearly. The latest issue contains a very interesting omission.

In the January, 1947, edition Nebraska's Senator Kenneth S. Wherry detailed at length his numerous business and professional activities. Among these was that he is the only undertaker in Congress and that he had been "a licensed embalmer and funeral director for 20 years in Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa and Missouri."

Following the publication of this information, Wherry was subjected to derisive potshots by various commentators, colleagues and, particularly, Democratic critics. The latter irreverently took to referring to him as the "Merry Mortician."

The latest edition of the Congressional Directory gives these elements no further cause for derision. Wherry deleted all mention of his undertaking interests.

California Corn Growers Proud

Hollywood.—California had to come to Oregon's rescue when corn in the Northwestern State recently failed to meet movie specifications. It all happened because RKO Radio's "Rachel," co-starring Loretta Young, William Holden and Robert Mitchum, is being filmed near Eugene, Oreg.

The script calls for corn on Holden's farm to be ready for harvesting—and Oregon corn just now isn't. California corn is already mature, wherefore enough Southland corn to cover a 10-acre field had to be shipped to Eugene.

'This Happy Breed' Portrays British Ineptly

(Mr. Brady, an instructor in the Speech and Drama Department at Catholic University, has been a frequent contributor to The Washington Post's theater page. He will handle theater reviews while Richard L. Coe is on vacation.)

By Leo Brady

"THIS HAPPY BREED" at the Hippodrome is the second volume in Noel Coward's sentimental history of the British people. It takes up where "Cavalcade," the first volume, left off—at exactly the same level of materialism, saccharine myopia and tear-stained mediocrity.

The synthetic emotion which lurks in all Coward's work—and is gilt over with minor-league epigrams in "Design for Living" and "Private Lives"—stands out raw and cold when he fixes his slumming eye on the so-called middle classes.

Of Two Generations

The picture is one of those two-generation documentaries spanning the years 1919 and 1939. It deals with the Gibbons family—father, mother, mother-in-law, aunt, two girls and a boy—which rehearses all the minor crises of love, marriage, birth and death which you and I suffer every day without benefit of technicolor.

Newspaper headlines, Fascist speakers in Hyde Park, and radio broadcasts bring you down through the years, past Stanley Baldwin, past the General Strike, past the death of Chamberlain.

The intention, obviously, is to play up the simple, heart-tugging experiences of a typical family, with their joys and sorrows, their smiles and their tears—you get the idea. With a tribute to the indomitable people of England thrown in. It is only fair to state that Director David Lean and the acting company give it everything they have—which is considerable.

Middle-Class to End

Robert Newton as the father and Celia Johnson as the mother are stand-out. They will undoubtedly remind you of somebody you knew, whether you spent your childhood in Clapham or not. Newton is the shrewd, understanding father, tolerant and humorous. But Miss Johnson, as the hard-working, practical, Victorian mother—who may bear some relation to Philip Wylie's "Mom"—turns in the top acting job in the picture. In gesture, in look, in voice, in attitude, she is middle-class to the end.

Newton, by the way, has to struggle with a premarriage speech to son John Blythe, which might serve as a kind of epilog to all Coward's design-for-living farces.

"THIS HAPPY BREED," a Prestige picture of Universal-International Release produced by Noel Coward, directed by David Lean, screenplay by Ronald Neame, Lean and Anthony Haverlock-Allen, based on the play by Noel Coward. At the Hippodrome.

One genuinely touching scene occurs when Kay Walsh—who plays the headstrong daughter stock in all these family sagas—returns home after running off with a married man. Kay couldn't stand the stodginess of the household and took off one tinted night in an attempt to escape the fate she saw bearing down on her every time she looked at her mother.

She returns, rid of her waywardness, to marry John Mills. For myself, there was a rebellious moment there when I hoped she'd make it. But they got her just in time to ship her off to Singapore on what looked suspiciously like the S. S. Titanic set out of "Cavalcade."

Wrangling Relatives

Stanley Holloway does a nice cozy job of the man next door. Amy Venness and Alison Leggatt do what they can with Coward's (and Joe Miller's) idea of wrangling relatives, and Guy Verney works like blazes over one scene which almost comes off.

The picture has practically every production virtue you can think of—good direction, good acting, slick and unobtrusive photography by Ronald Neame, and the technicolor is pitched low enough so that everybody looks human, but in the end it has no more depth than a bowl of beef broth. The spirit of Britain is better absorbed from the pages of recent history. To filch further from poor John of Gaunt's lines, what we could use here is a blessed plot.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

THE NATIONAL FOOTBALL LEAGUE continues to pretend there is no All-America Conference and that it has the professional football business to itself, but by this time that fiction ought to be wearing pretty thin. That 16-0 licking the NFL's champions, the Chicago Bears, took from the College All-Stars at Chicago the other night was no bad dream. The All-America Conference had a lot to do with it.

POVICH

Seven of the men in the starting lineup of the college team graduated the next day into the ranks of pro football, but not into NFL ranks. They joined the teams of the All-America Conference despite the claim of the NFL that there is no other major professional league. And the AAC grabbed off the top performer in Buddy Young of Illinois, who now goes to work for the New York Football Yankees.

The AAC people were beaming at the Bears' discomfiture the other night in Chicago, and Bob Rodenberg, who owns the Baltimore Colts, sent a note to the press box after the game in which he said: "The College All-Stars tonight defeated the Chicago Bears, champions of the National Football League, which is not to be confused, of course, with the All-America Conference."

BUDDY YOUNG, the 5-foot-5-inch colored boy who at 165 pounds is a very muscular chap, was dynamite all night, and he represents not only a touchdown threat for the New York Yankees, but money in the bank. The football Yankees, with Young in their lineup, think they will move right in on the patronage of Jackie Robinson's fans after the baseball season ends. They think the signing of Young was not only a smart move to bolster their football team, but a great practical stroke, which it probably is.

Young was discombooberating the Bears every minute he was in the Collegians' lineup. Not only was he taking short passes behind the line and outspeeding the Bears' flanks, but he was ripping through the line and creating panic in the Bears' secondary. He had the Bears in such a state of mind that he actually created a touchdown on one play without figuring in it.

That was on the Collegians' second touchdown play, after Young had contributed a 34-yard dash to the first touchdown drive, and had followed up by lugging the ball 40-odd yards a bit later. On the succeeding play the Bears put three men on Young, who was playing wide on the left flank, and with their defenses thus stripped George Ratterman threw a long touchdown pass to John Zilly on the other end.

IT WAS AMAZING to see the College boys actually bullying the big, bad Bears and usurping the role of the Chicago club which usually gives that kind of going-over to the opposition. They stopped the Bears' running game with a mere 35 yards for the night, and with two converted guards playing tackle they outplayed the Bears' line.

The night's heat was awful, and to the greater disadvantage of the Bears, no doubt. Youth was on the side of the collegians, and in the Bears' lineup were men who had been playing 10 years and more of pro football. The reflexes don't respond so easily with them, in the ennervating temperature of 90-some degrees. The Collegians, too, had a 60-man squad with only a small differential in the caliber of talent, while the Bears, when they were not operating with their first team, were at a disadvantage.

Just the same, it was interesting to see George McAfee call for a fair catch of a college punt in the third quarter. Interesting and downright amazing. Among the pros the fair catch had become quite obsolete, and it was the kind of punt McAfee has often taken to a touchdown. But by the third quarter that night, he knew how those College ends were apt to hit him.

Of the 60-man college squad, 47 are either wearing pro football uniforms today or are on their way to join professional clubs. Of that number 27 will join the NFL, 20 are signed by the All-America Conference. They will get fancy salaries for joining the pros, because of the competitive bidding by the two circuits.

Bert Bell, president of the NFL, declared the other day that the average player salary in his league this year would be $6000. It's about the same figure in the AAC. The graduating collegians ought to hope the war never ends. They are getting in 1963. And peace will break out some day, and the college player who gets over $6000 a year will be highly paid.

The fact is that the pro football club that makes money is rare. The Redskin management, which packs Griffith Stadium for its every game, admits there would be no profit for the season were it not for the exhibition game revenue. The stubborn antisocial attitude of the NFL toward the AAC is getting awfully expensive. All of the NFL clubs can't afford it.

Cardinals, Dodgers Both Win Again

4 Boston Hurlers Bow; Musial Gets 16th; Score 9-5

Boston, Aug. 24 (AP).—After getting off to a jittery start, the St. Louis Cardinals belted four Boston Brave pitchers for 15 hits including Stan Musial's sixteenth homer, for a 9-5 victory today before a sweltering 24,522 crowd. Pitcher Murry Dickson launched the Red Birds attack by singling with the bases loaded in the fourth inning.

The Reed Birds clincher was Musial's homer off Si Johnson as the seventh inning opened. On his previous trip, Musial moved the Cards into a 5-4 lead by scoring after Johnson relieved starter Johnny Sain with the bases loaded and let go with a wild pitch before striking Moore.

Dickson, who notched his tenth win against 12 defeats, showed his teammates how to soar by singling in two runs with the bases jammed in the fourth session.

The win, the Cards' ninth in their current 17-game troad trip, enable them to remain 6½ games behind the top-place Dodgers and lifted them to 2½ games over the third-place Braves.

Bums Beat Pirates 3-1, Making It 4 Victories in Row

Brooklyn, Aug. 24 (AP).—Fireman Hugh Casey, coming to the rescue of Ralph Branca in the eighth inning, extinguished a Pittsburgh rally and enabled the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers to defeat the Pirates 3-1 today.

Branca, who received credit for his eighteenth victory of the season, had been touched for one run and had men on first and third and one out when replaced by Casey. The veteran reliefer fanned Frankie Gustine and got Ralph Kiner on a ground out.

Reese, Stanky Out

In scoring their fourth straight triumph, the Dodgers were minus the services of second sacker Eddie Stanky and shortstop Pee Wee Reese but the substitute keystone combination of Eddie Miksis and Stan Rojek filled in ably. Both Stanky and Reese were spiked yesterday in the Cincinnati game.

Miksis lined a homer in the seventh inning and Rojek drove in Dixie Walker from third with a single in the first frame. The Brooks collected their second run off Ernie Bonham in the fourth on successive doubles by Gene Hermansri and Bruce Edwards.

Branca Hit

Branca had a two-hit shutout going into the eighth. After Clyde Kluttz struck out, pinch-hitter Bill Salkeld, Curley Rikard and Rip Russell singled in succession to drive out Branca and set the stage for Casey.

A capacity crowd of 33,207 saw the game.

Giants Split, Set National Homer Record

New York, Aug. 24 (AP).—The New York Giants blasted five home runs today in splitting a doubleheader with the Chicago Cubs to set a National League home run record of 173 for the season. The old mark was set by the Cubs in 1930.

Walker Cooper and Sid Gordon hit homers in the first game to help Larry Jansen register his fifteenth victory against four defeats with a 4-0 triumph. The Cubs won the second game, 8-3, despite Johnny Mize's fortieth home run and four-baggers by Ernie Lombardi and Buddy Kerr.

Nine More for Record

The Giants need only nine more home runs in their 35 remaining games to tie the major league record of 182 set by the New York Yankees in 1936.

Eddie Waitkus hit a homer inside the park with the bases full to climax a five-run inning for the Cubs as Hank Wyse ewent the distance for his fifth triumph in the nightcap.

Hooks Iott was the victim and was relieved by Andy Hansen and Sheldon Jones. Wyse helped his cause by hitting a triple with two men on board.

Kerr's Blow Does It

Buddy Kerr's homer in the seventh broke the tie with the 1930 Cubs.

Giants Split, Set National Homer Record

New York, Aug. 24 (AP).—The New York Giants blasted five home runs today in splitting a doubleheader with the Chicago Cubs to set a National League home run record of 173 for the season. The old mark was set by the Cubs in 1930.

Walker Cooper and Sid Gordon hit homers in the first game to help Larry Jansen register his fifteenth victory against four defeats with a 4-0 triumph. The Cubs won the second game, 8-3, despite Johnny Mize's fortieth home run and four-baggers by Ernie Lombardi and Buddy Kerr.

Nine More for Record

The Giants need only nine more home runs in their 35 remaining games to tie the major league record of 182 set by the New York Yankees in 1936.

Eddie Waitkus hit a homer inside the park with the bases full to climax a five-run inning for the Cubs as Hank Wys ewent the distance for his fifth triumph in the nightcap.

Hooks Iott was the victim and was relieved by Andy Hansen and Sheldon Jones. Wyse helped his cause by hitting a triple with two men on board.

Kerr's Blow Does It

Buddy Kerr's homer in the seventh broke the tie with the 1930 Cubs.

Yankees Split; Chisox Defeat Bobo in First

Chicago, Aug. 24 (AP).—The New York Yankees blasted 16 hits to win a seven-inning, 16-to-6 second game from the Chicago White Sox today after losing the opener 3-2, to divide a double-header before 37,866 persons.

Joe DiMaggio hit his fifteenth home run and Aaron Robinson his fifth to highlight the New Yorkers' comeback against Red Ruffing and Orval Grove after Joe Haynes won the first with ninth-inning help from Earl Caldwell.

A downpour forced a one-hour delay in the opener and the second game was called in the seventh because of darkness.

Buck Newsom, trying for his sixth Yankee win, was handed his third defeat in the first game. Rudy York singled in the sixth to score Ralph Hodgin with the tying run. Newsom then walked Luke Appling and Cass Michaels singled to score York with the winning run.

Assault Goes Lame, Race With Armed Off

CHICAGO, Aug. 24 (AP).—The nationally acclaimed $100,000 winner-take-all match race between Armed and Assault, scheduled for next Saturday at Washington Park, was called off today when Assault developed a soreness in his foot after an early morning workout.

After learning that the King Rach's great colt could not possibly be at his best to meet Calumet Farm's champion, Benjamin F. Lindheimer, executive director of Washington Park, decided the race should be called off promptly in the interest of the public.

* * * *

ASSAULT pulled up sore after working a mile and an eighth this morning," Trainer Max Hirsch said. "The soreness developed in the foot that has been slightly deformed since Assault was a baby. Every time he is shod it is like performing a delicate operation. It may be that the soreness is due to a nail that touches a tender spot in his foot when I set him down for a hard effort.

"Under these circumstances it would not be fair to the public or to my great horse to run the match." He thought Assault would be out at least a month.

Harrison Wins $15,000 Open With 272—16 Under Par

Reno, Nev., Aug. 24 (AP).—E. J. (Dutch) Harrison of York, Pa., firing a smashing final round 66, shattered par and the hopes of rivals today to win the $15,000 Reno Open Golf tournament with a 72-hole total of 272. It was 16 under par for the four rounds.

National PGA Champion Jim Ferrier of San Francisco, and Ellsworth Vines, Los Angeles, tied for second money at 275.

It was a geat victoy and in the nature of a comeback for the lean, leathery 38-year-old Harrison, formerly known as the "Arkansas Traveler," playing out of Little Rock.

Starting in second position today, two strokes behind Ky Laffoon of St. Andrews, Ill., Harrison hit practically every shot on the line and dropped in putts of all distances with consistent regularity. He leveled the par 36-36-72-Washoe County course, 6611 yards long, with a 34-32. In the preceding three rounds he had scores of 66-70-70.

Vines, the halfway pace setter, also made a fine comeback today, with a 67, to gain his second-place tie.

Present National Open champion Lew Worsham of Washington, D. C., was far back, with a 287.

The victory was worth $2500 to Harrison, who previously this year had won the Delaware Open and tied for the Nashville (Tenn.) Open, losing in the playoff in the latter.

Ferrier and Vines each received $1600 for their second-place deadlock.

Pre-tournament favorite Ben Hogan of Hershey, Pa., also made a strong finish with a 67 to chalk up a 276, which gave him a standoff with Laffoon. Laffoon, who paced the field as it started the second round, lost his putting touch and carded a 37-35—even par, but not good enough to win in such fast company.

Al Smith of Winston-Salem, N. C., finished in the money with a 277, while Jimmy Demaret of Ojai, Calif., and former United States Open champion Lloyd Mangrum of Los Angeles shared a spot in the 278 bracket.

The low amateur of the tournament was Carl Wheeler of Reno, with a 284.

Perry to Play In Golf Match

Philadelphia, Aug. 24 (AP).—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis has been established as one of the favorites in the National Negro Open Golf tournament beginning Monday over the Cobbs' Creek course.

Howard Wheeler, of Philadelphia, is defending champion.

Louis, lightweight champion Ike Williams, welterweight king Sugar Ray Robinson and Aaron Perry, Washington lightweight, will play a special match Friday as an added feature to the closing day's play.

Dodgers Buy Star Pitcher Of Negro League

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 24 (AP).—Dan Bankhead, pitching star of the Negro American League, has been sold to the Brooklyn Dodgers of the National League for a price reported "over $10,000," it was announced today.

The Memphis righthander, scouted by Dodger President Branch Rickey personally over the weekend, was scheduled to leave by plane tonight for Brooklyqn to join the Dodgers.

Bankhead, who has been in the Negro league four years, has a 1947 record of ten victories and five defeats. A fast-baller, he has fanned 124. Bankhead also leads the Negro American League in hitting with an average of .385.

If he crashes the Brooklyn lineup, Bankhead would be the first Negro ever to pitch in the major leagues.

Washington Rookie Halts Browns in First Start

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 24.—Rookie left-hander Scott Cary, whom the Nats have heretofore used in relief roles when the game was usually hopelessly lost, went in for himself today and brought the Nats a 7-4 triumph in the second game of a twin bill after the Brownies had walked away with the opener, 7-1.

Although he needed help in the ninth inning when the Browns scored three runs, Cary was doing a fancy job of flipping to make his first major league start a successful one.

Cary got a good lift from Gerry Priddy, who drove in five runs; Joe Grace, who accounted for the other two; and Walter Masterson, who quelled the eighth-place Brownies in the ninth when they threatened to mess up the rookie's big league debut.

Cary had a seven-hit, 7-1 decision entering the ninth but the 103-degree temperature had sapped a lot of strength from his diminutive frame and he just didn't have enough left to finish what he had started.

He was nicked for 11 hits, including a homer by Catcher Les Moss in the seventh. Four of the safeties plus one of the two walks he issued brought the Browns their three runs in the last inning and also brought Masterson to the mound. Walt fanned Ray Coleman, who represented the winning run, to save the day for the recruit from the

Out Fishing...

By Jack Bell

JASPER, Alberta, Canada, Aug. 24.—Jasper National Park in the Rocky Mountains of northwestern Canada is an area of grandeur with rough titanic snow, ice-covered peaks and picturesque valleys telling an interesting story of living glaciers.

The valleys are filled with lakes that have been gouged out by glaciers of long ago and now are filled with greenish-colored water from slow-melting glaciers.

Many of the lakes and streams in Jasper do not contain fish-life. So virgin are the waters that Nature has not had time to provide fish. Near Jasper, many of the lakes and streams have been planted with rainbow and Eastern brook trout and reproduction is phenomenal.

OUR CANADIAN hosts lost no time in getting the traveling outdoor writers off into the back country to beautiful Malinge Lake. The lake was first stocked with Eastern brook trout in 1928.

The first stage of the journey was by car, across the Athabaska River, north past Lakes Annette and Edith, which are filled with rainbows, to Medicine Lake, about two hours' ride.

The second stage by boat, an hour and a half, to the head of the lake. Medicine Lake is approximately 2 miles wide and 5 long. Gouged out by a glacier, long melted away, the lake is filled by Malinge River that drains Malinge Lake. However, there is no visible outlet from Medicine Lake, the outlet being underground, the water again coming to the surface 9 miles south, forming the Lower Malinge River.

The seasonal run off of Medicine Lake is approximately 65 feet, while the run off in Malinge Lake is not perceptible.

Indians named it Medicine Lake because it was considered bad medicine for so much water to recede without any visible outlet.

SLEEPING under canvas that night we listened to rain pounding on the tent top, most of the night. In the morning cold rain and low clouds obscured the lake and mountains. Fishing under such conditions, however, produced many Eastern brook trout weighing 3½ pounds the average was 2 pounds.

The next day an attempt was made to return to civilization, but the trail was impassable, giving us another day of excellent fishing under a cloudy sky.

After the water seeped out of the trail we made the rough trip back to Jasper, after a shave and bath we continued by bus back to the States to Idaho and Pendorielle, home of the world record breaking Kamloops trout.

If Heurich Loses, They Play Again

The Heurich Brewers, undefeated in City Series Play, will attempt to end the series today when they meet the Fire Department nine on the South Ellispe at 4:45 p. m.

The winner of the City Series will go to Harrisburg, Pa., to play in the National Amateur tournament.

Heurich has taken three straight in the series, while the Firemen have won three games and lost only to Heurich, 1-0.

The Brewers also have beaten Costello Post, 10-3, and the FBI, 2-1. The Firemen, aside from their loss to Heurich, have defeated Costello, 3-1; Underwood, 19-8, and the Merrick Boys Club, 5-4.

Firemen Need Two Straight

In the event the Brewers drop today's contest, the teams will meet again tomorrow for the title.

It will take a great spurt of ball playing for the Firemen to win two straight against the Brewers, who have by far the most experienced club in the series.

With five good moundsmen, a well balanced infield and the best catcher in the city, the Brewers should be unbeatable. Nevertheless, both the Fire Department and the FBI have given the Heurich team bad scares, and Heurich hasn't played too impressively to date.

Not So Hot at Bat

Heurich has been getting very good pitching, but they haven't done much at bat.

Heurich's ability to take advantage of the opposing teams' errors has won the close ones, but one of these days a team might make the Brewers earn their runs. The firemen might be the team to take advantage of the Brewers' careless play to score a big upset.

Pulling a "Ruth"

'I Called It All Right,' Says Ducky Medwick About Homer Into Left Against Phillies

BOSTON, Aug. 24 (AP).—The record books were dusted off today as baseball fans compared Joe "Ducky" Medwick's "calling his shot" prior to belting a three-run homer Saturday against the Phillies to a similar feat by the great Babe Ruth.

Medwick said here that "I called the shot on it all right. And it was with Harry Walker's bat, too. Musial and Kurowski were on and Chapman (Phil's manager) and some of the boys of the Phillies bench were calling for me to hit into a double play."

"Double play, H——, I'll hit a homer," was Joe's retort. And he did just that on the next pitch, belting the ball on a line into the second deck in left field, 335 feet away.

Medwick said "I'd been using a lighter bat and found Harry's heavy brown and white one in with ours, so I tried it and got a double and a homer. In my other two trips, without it, I didn't hit safely."

Reminded of the Babe's mighty swat off Charlie Root in the fifth inning of the third game of the 1932 World Series against the Cubs at Wrigley Field, Ducky said:

"I sure do rememer it, the Babe was a great ballplayer."

Ducky reached over and picked up Walker's big bat and stroked it fondly, "looks like I'll be using this from here on in, I like it."

He said he'd pack it on the rest of the Cards' road trips and at home games, too.

"Can't give up on something which helped me so."

The homer gave Medwick a total of four for the season and his two hits in three times up left him only a few points from the comfortable .300 mark.

Crystal Plunge Team Wins

Dutch Girl Star Again Breaks U. S. Record

Chicago, Aug. 24 (AP).—San Francisco's Crystal Plunge Club, paced by Ann Curtis' triple slam, easily retained its team title, but a record-pulverizing Dutch girl, 21-year-old Nel Van Vliet, stole the individual spotlight in the Women's National AAU outdoor swimming meet today.

The petite Miss Van Vliet blasted an American breast-stroke record twice for the second straight day when she won the 100-meter event in 1:21.6, clipping 2.7 seconds from the old mark. This morning her qualifying 1.22.5 also topped the former American mark of 1:24.3.

Miss Yesterday, Miss Van Vliet became the first European in 25 years to win a National AAU outdoor crown when she won the 200 meter breaststroke in the American record-breaking time of 2:58.6. The last foreigner to win a title was Hilda James of England, who took the 300 individual medley in 1922.

The Crystal Plunge team, whose Miss Curtis won the 100, 400 and 800 meter free style events, setting a new 400 American record and a new 100 meet mark, piled up 46 points to win its third straight outdoor crown.

Second in the team standings with 29 points was the Multnomah Club of Portland, Oreg., whose Nancy Merki tied Miss Curtis for high point honors with 15.

I.; third, Jeanne Wilson, Lake Shore Athletic Club, Chicago; fourth, Nancy Merki, Multnomah A. C., Portland, Oreg. Time, 1:21.6 (new American and A.A.U. record. 800-METER FREE STYLE—Won by Ann Curtis, Crystal Plunge Club, San Francisco; second, Marilyn Saxon, Crystal Plunge; third, Betty Lachock, Firestone Club, Akron, Ohio; fourth, Joan Mallory, Crystal Plunge. Time, 11:21.8.

Tigers Win Twice; Mullin's Hit Wins 2d

Detroit, Aug. 24 (AP).—Pat Mullin's ninth-inning single with the bases loaded gave the Detroit Tigers a 5-4 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics today and a sweep of a double-header after Virgil Trucks had fanned nine men, pitching a seven-hit 6-to-2 victory in the opener.

The A's seemed headed for an even split when they scored an unearned run in both the seventh and eighth innings of the nightcap to take a 4-2 lead over Hal Newhouser.

But Roy Cullenbine walked to lead off the Tiger eighth and Vic Wertz lined his third homer of the season into the right field stands to tie the score at 4-all.

Two men were out in the ninth when Eddie Lake doubled and Cullenbine walked.

Connie Mack elected to move the winning run to third by ordering Carl Scheib to intentionally pass Wertz, who had three straight hits, and Mullin delivered an infield hit back of first base that broke up the game and moved the Tigers within a half game of the second place Boston Red Sox.

49ers Beaten By Dons, 14-7

San Francisco, Aug. 24 (AP).—Scoring quickly twice in the second quarter, the Los Angeles Dons defeated the San Francisco Forty Niners 14 to 7 in an All-American professional football conference exhibition game today before a crowd estimated at 40,000.

Jack Lyons Hurls No-Hitter, Blanks Cissel-Saxon, 6-0

Jack Lyons pitched one of the classics of the local baseball season as Potomac defeated Cissel Saxon, 6-0, yesterday in a Montgomery County League game on the Potomac diamond.

Lyons gave up no hits and just missed pitching a perfect game. He retired the first 24 batters to face him, then a walk and two errors permitted the losers to get their only runners on base.

Ralph Frasier of St. Francis Xavier hurled another fine game in the Intercity Junior League. Frasier struck out 19 men and allowed but three hits as his team defeated league-leading Hume Springs, 4-2.

The Irish War Vets swamped Equality-Walter Reed Post in the first game of the VFW League playoffs. Don Wortley pitched a neat three-hitter as the Irish Sluggers teed off on the first-half champions. Dude and Grady Glover batted in eight runs between them to lead the Irish attack.

you don't have to look that far for the right TIME..

. . just come to SCHWARTZ to get the TIMEpiece that tells!

Astronomical Al . . . they call him. Always late . . . always worrying . . . always star-gazing when he should be watch-gazing. Poor guy. If only he'd gone to Schwartz for a new watch . . . instead of relying on the stars . . . he'd never be in this fix. It's all so very simple. For the timepiece that tells . . . turn your sights on Schwartz instead of Saturn. Not only do we supply you with the right time all the time . . . but we do it in a multitude of ways. Gadget hounds delight in our watches with sweep second hands . . . luminous dials . . . chronograph movements. There's an entire school of our patrons who insist on watches that are shockproof, waterproof, or that wind themselves. We take care of them, too. And then, there are those who put stars of delight in their wife's or sweetheart's eye with a gift of a lovely miniature watch in white, pink or yellow gold . . . or a diamond-encrusted gem of a timepiece . . . to wear on her wrist or clip to her blouse. They serve the dual purpose of a beautiful jewel . . . and a practical timepiece. For the movement of the stars, see the nearest astronomer. But for a watch movement that is always on time, see Schwartz . . . a Great Name in Jewelry in the Nation's Capital.

U. S. Employment Here At Lowest in 5 Years

DOWN: Housing should be opening up in this city, what with the recent sharp decline in the number of Federal workers. A preliminary estimate shows:

Kluttz

That in the months of June and July there was a reduction of nearly 15,000 Federal employes in this city, a record number; that the total number of Government people here is now below the 200,000 mark for the first time in five years, and that the reduction here has been greater proportionately than it has been recently in the country over.

For example, in the month of July, the over-all reduction of Federal workers was about 40,000, of whom approximately 7000 were in this Capital city. Washington has about 10 per cent of all Government people.

Officials predict another but smaller decline in August. But beginning in September they foresee a gradual increase that will bring Federal employment here again to the 200,000 level by early next year. The increase will be accounted for mainly by the transfer back here of nine agencies that have 4500 jobs in them.

NEW: Civil Service has amended its lay-off regulations to give greater job security to career employes and veterans. Briefly, the new order provides:

That a career or veteran preference employe MUST be offered reassignment to another position for which he is qualified, if such a job exists in his agency and if it's filled by a war service or temporary employe.

Formerly an agency was given discretion in the matter. It could fire a war service employe and give his job to a career or veteran preference employe if the job switch did not cause "undue interruption" to its work.

But, it seems, a good many agencies seized upon this "out" to fire career people and veterans. Now that door has been closed. They "MUST" now make job offers to career people and veterans in the vast majority of the cases.

Another new provision gives greater security to the career veteran over the career nonveteran. This is how it will work:

Say a career veteran who is chief of the payroll section is slated to be either fired or furloughed, and that he had been promoted recently from payroll clerk to section chief. The career veteran now has the right to replace a career nonveteran in his old payroll clerk job. And the same regulation covers job retention rights between nonpreference career employes.

CIVIL SERVICE EXAMS: A Nation-wide exam for economists will be announced early next month. Starting salaries will range from $3397 to $5905. No written tests will be given, as applicants will be rated on education and experience . . . And about the same time the commission will announce an exam for laborer jobs for both men and women. Salaries will range from $1690 to $1822. No written test will be given. Most of the openings here are in Public Buildings Administration.

JOBS: The Army's Signal Corps has openings for CAF-3 and 4 stenographers. If interested, go to Room 3D-271 in the Pentagon, or call REpublic 6700, Branch 2525.

PEOPLE: Thomas D. Bransford, assistant chief of Civil Service's test development section, has resigned to become director of civil service examinations in New York State. . . . John D. Kay has been appointed assistant to the Civil Aeronautics administrator for aeronautical charts. He was with the Coast and Geodetic Survey. . . . New officers of the Society for Personnel Administration are Fletcher Waller, president; William M. Rehaender, vice president; Ellen Manchester, secretary-treasurer, and David Stanley, Robert Ireland and Charles Campbell, committee members.

CIVIL SERVICE NOTES: Its to-be-created loyalty review board will have offices in the Federal Trade Building. Its expanded investigations division will take over space in Tempo D, and its fourth regional office, to be moved back here in October, will be put in Tempo R, at 4th st. and Independence ave. sw.

PAY RAISES: A good many cities have given cost-of-living pay raises to all or part of their employes, perhaps a forerunner of similar action by the Federal Government. Among them are Des Moines, Minneapolis, St. Paul, Louisville, Columbus, San Diego, Indianapolis, Baltimore and Providence.

VACATION: I'm off on a short holiday. I'll be back next week.

2 Bandits Obtain $102 In Stickup Of Hotel

Houston Desk Clerk Forced to Produce Day's Receipts At Point of Gun

A deceptively peaceful Sunday afternoon in downtown Washington was the scene yesterday of an armed robbery in the lobby of the Houston Hotel, 910 E st. nw., netting the thieves about $102 in cash.

Two men entered the front door at 3:05 p. m., and while one purchased gum from a stand in the corner, the other strode up to the desk, pulled out a gun, and demanded that the clerk open up his cash drawer.

After emptying the contents of the drawer, the robber joined his accomplice covering him at the door, and the two fled on foot east on E st. and then south on 9th st., police reported.

Both "Neatly Dressed"

As described to police by the clerk on duty at the time, Jack Bell, 36, 2405 Burke ave., Alexandria, the two men were both "neatly dressed."

The actual robbery was effected by a man wielding a .32 or .38-caliber nickel-plated pistol, and described as between 24 and 27 years of age, blond, sporting a crew cut, about 165 pounds in weight and 5 feet 10 inches in height.

The other, who paid for the gum bought from D. E. Darr, 6 Marlin Green sw. (who was being broken in on his first day at work), was said to be a brunette, wearing a blue suit, between 28 and 30 years of age and weighing about 170 pounds. His height was estimated at 5 feet 11 inches, and it was believed that he, too, was carrying a gun.

Another robbery reported to police yesterday, although not so brazen, resulted in a greater monetary loss to the owner.

A tool box containing approximately $1000 in cash and $400 in checks was lifted from Ridney H. Darby, 22, of 2006 Gosnell st., Glen Haven, Md., while he was returning Saturday night from the store of which he is co-owner, the Annandale Market, Annandale, Va.

At the corner of 13th and W sts. nw., his paneled delivery truck had a flat tire. On getting out to find a service station, he hid the box in the rear under a pile of tools and groceries. Upon returning 15 minutes later, he discovered that some one had absconded with it.

Two armed thieves relieved George S. Pointer, 23, 4600 A st. se., an attendant at the Cities Service Station, 2319 Benning rd. ne., of $40 of the company's funds and a .38-caliber revolver at 2 a. m. yesterday.

Pointer told police that the .38 caliber revolver flourished by one of the thugs appeared to be the same one stolen from the garage the previous Tuesday or Wednesday.

Active On Other Fronts

Thieves were active on still other fronts over the weekend. One with the aid of what appeared to be the ever-popular hand-in-pocket ruse, to suggest a gun, took $20 in cash from Mrs. Meta Waters at the Waters Hotel and Club Agency, 1213 I st. nw. at 11 a. m. yesterday.

A house-breaking was reported to police yesterday by Mrs. Roxana B. Doran, 3522 P st. nw. Between last Tuesday and Saturday, while she was away, thieves broke in through a basement door to ransack the entire house. Missing were a chest containing 75 pieces of sterling silver valued at $200 and a small radio valued at $5.

Two pocketbook snatchings were reported over the weekend. Mrs. Mary McLaughlin, 83, of 1824 Jefferson pl. nw., lost her handbag, together with 90c, eyeglasses and keys, to a "tall, thin man" while standing in front of a shop window near her home early Sunday morning.

Mrs. Goldie Van Miller, 42, of 1201 13th st. nw., didn't get away so lightly. While returning from work Saturday evening a 35-year-old man snatched her black cloth pocketbook which contained $32 in cash, keys and papers.

A guest at the Willard Hotel reported $260 stolen from his hotel room between 8 and 9 a. m. yesterday.

Dr. Thomas Humble of Chicago left his room at 8 a. m. with the money hidden in a pillow. On returning an hour later it was gone.

Wife Charged With Shooting Spouse in Va.

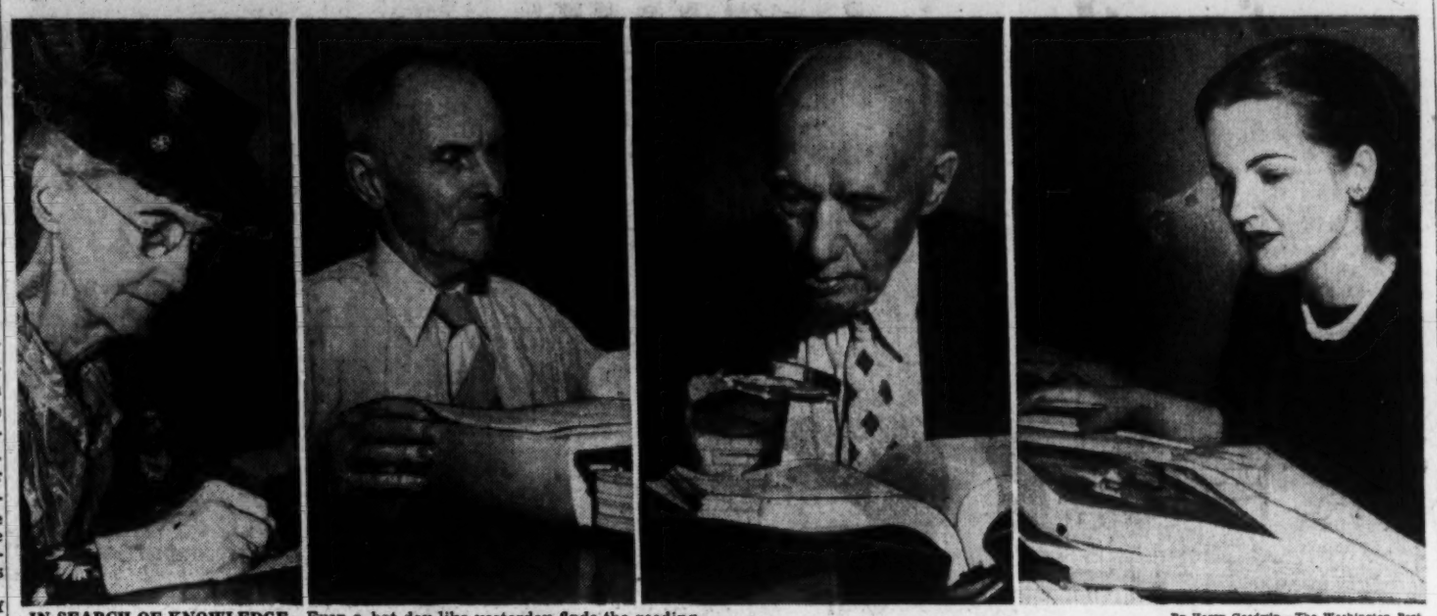
A Warrenton, Va., housewife was charged by police last night with shooting and seriously wounding her 34-year-old husband.

The victim, James W. Riley, of Warrenton, was shot in the abdomen late Saturday night at his home. He told police he did not know who fired the shot but that he and his wife, Hannah Katherine, 35, had been arguing.

Police said the wife admitted firing the .32-caliber revolver because she "was afraid of him." She was formally charged with felonious shooting and released under a $500 bond in order to care for their four children. No date had been set last night for the hearing.

The wounded man was treated at Physicians' Hospital, Warrenton, and later transferred to Mount Alto Hospital where the bullet was removed from the lower right side of his abdomen. His condition was described as "fair" last night.

Heat Proves No Deterrent for Library of Congress Researchers



By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

Law-Making U. N. Is Urged By Historian

Dr. Gewehr Advocates Enforcement Powers Touching Individuals

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Reorganization of the United Nations into a law-enforcement and law-making body was advocated yesterday by Dr. Wesley M. Gewehr, head of the University of Maryland history department.

Dr. Gewhr spoke at Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church, New Mexico and Nebraska aves. nw., as a substitute for regular clergymen who are vacationing.

"The United Nations Organization must be replanned as a law-making and law-enforcing body with the preponderance of power enforceable upon individuals, just as in our Constitution," stated Dr. Gewehr.

Dr. Gewehr, reminding that in less than 10 years America has assumed a role of world leadership "unparalleled in history," pleaded for America to use "the power of enforceable law" to maintain world peace.

He called upon Christians to scrap their "pre-Atomic age" thinking regarding world problems and realize that there must be a reign of law to guarantee world peace.

Opening Services Held

The Rev. M. A. Cookson yesterday called upon his congregation to become "spiritual builders," as they attended opening services in the new River Terrace Episcopal Church, Clay and Anacostia aves. ne.

A number of church articles were dedicated at the service. They included an organ and pulpit Bible, gifts of the Woman's Auxiliary, of which Mrs. Katherine McKenna is president; a set of altar vases, given by Mr. and Mrs. Roger Titus, in memory of their daughter, Audrey E. Titus, and an altar cross and candlesticks, presented by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Britton, in memory of their respective parents.

Power of Prayer Stressed

The power of prayer was stressed by the Rev. William B. Adams, pastor of Rockville (Md.) Baptist Church, and former Army chaplain.

Complacency Assailed

"Prayer creates a nobility of character and provides peacefulness for troubled times," Mr. Adams said. He related how servicemen repeatedly had written to tell him how the power of prayer had helped them through the perils of war.

Complacency Assailed

"Revitalization of Christian virtues" was urged by Dr. Charles T. Leber, chairman of the administrative board of the committee of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions.

Speaking at the National (Covenant-First) Presbyterian Church, 18th and N sts. nw., De. Leber declared:

"What delays the spread of Christianity in these days is not so much the hostility of non-Christians as the complacent and conventional virtue of many who have entered the church without any real commitment to the true teachings of Christ, which are always at heart revolutionary."

Dr. Leber illustrated this point in the realism of denominationalism, race relations, nationalism and personal living, and said that Christianity's task "is not only to deal with the sins of the world but also to revitalize its virtues."

Coal Mine Toll Now 20

Annfield Plain, England, Aug. 24 (AP).—One of five miners rescued in the Luisa coal mine explosion yesterday died today, raising the death toll to 20.

Library of Congress Teems Even on Midsummer Sunday

Time was when assistants at the Library of Congress might have looked forward to a little peace and quiet on such hot midsummer Sundays as yesterday.

If there ever were such days, they are no more.

A reportorial visit disclosed plenty of activity. And the patrons, incidentally, were not all students, scholars or litterati.

George E. Greenway, who was in charge of the air-conditioned Thomas Jefferson reading room in the Annex, indicated that many of those present were merely refugees from the outside heat.

But speaking of the library generally, it had an impressive array of patrons in pursuit of all imaginable kinds of knowledge.

One of the regular frequenters of the library reading room, on Sundays or weekdays, nights or days, is Francis N. Stacy, who lives conveniently near at 220 2d st. se.

Stacy, who was born on Abraham Lincoln's first Inauguration Day, said yesterday he works this way: He sees a subject that has some connection with pending legislative measures and digs out all he can find that is pertinent to the subject.

He writes it up, then presents it to whatever committee has the elgislation in hand in Congress, and sometimes also sells an article based on the information he has assembled. Usually, though, he doesn't get paid for his work for Congress.

Right now, he says, he is studying recent weather upsets in different parts of the world, which he believe are due to the atomic bombing of Japan and the tests at Bikini and in this country.

He believes that floods in China and in the Missouri and Mississippi River valleys this year stemmed from atomic disruption of the atmosphere.

Miss Virginia Mulhallan, 22, of 2321 Lincoln rd. ne. has only weekends to study her favorite subject, costume and scenery design for the stage.

An employe of Jelleff's bridal shop, Miss Mulhallan has a B.S. degree from Carnegie Institute of Technology, where her course was described as costume economics. She is continuing her studies on her own and hops to work on the stage some day.

Arthur Simmons, 77, of 2204 Q st. nw., past national commander of the Spanish War Veterans, was discovered at his almost daily pursuit, reading history and politics. Just now, he said, "this World War No. 3 has been getting on my nerves, as well as those of other people."

For that reason, he is reading everything he can find that can throw light on the causes of World War II, in the hope that such knowledge may be helpful in averting another war. He is a retired railway mail clerk.

Another researcher at the library yesterday was Mrs. Mary P. Davis, whose family has been in Washington for three generations.

A retired teacher in the District schools, Mrs. Davis writes articles on local subjects of interest, drawing on family anecdotes to liven the facts she finds in the Library of Congress.

One of the library's busiest men was Bingley W. Thompson, who was in charge of the genealogy reading room. Some 40 people were busily looking up their ancestors and yours. Amateurs and professionals alike use this room continuously in their searches for ancestors—and family skeletons.

Zone Reform Meeting Set in Montgomery

Zoning reforms for Montgomery County, Md., will be discussed at a mass meeting of residents tonight at 8 o'clock in St. Michael's School auditorium, Silver Spring, Md.

Speakers for the meeting include Victor J. Richter, president of the Allied Civic Group of Silver Spring; Samuel H. Horne of Woodside Park; Frank J. Duane of Seven Oaks Manor, and Dr. C. M. Derryberry of Woodmoor, all civic leaders of the Silver Spring area. Ralph D. Boyd, former president of the Allied Civic Group, will preside.

The meeting has been called by the Citizens Zoning Committee to formulate plans for halting inroads on single-family residential areas by business and apartment construction.

Particularly irksome to the group is the practice of continuing applications for rezoning each 90 days after denial by the county commissioners. The group seeks strict compliance with the master zoning plan as it is formulated.

D. C. Teacher Tests Slated To Start Today

Examinations for licenses to teach in the public white day elementary schools of the District will start today and continue through Wednesday.

Written examination will be held in Room 215, Wilson Teachers College, 11th and Harvard sts. nw., starting at 8:45 a. m. today.

Physical examinations will be held Wednesday for all except permanent teachers.

Oral examinations for out-of-town candidates will be held during the three-day period at places designated during written examinations, and for other candidates at the call of the Board of Examiners.

'Skyway No. 1' Survey Opens September 8

Signs Will Mark Route Across U. S. For Private Fliers

Surveys for the first transcontinental "skyway," designed as an aid for fliers of personal and other nonscheduled planes between Washington and Los Angeles, will begin September 8.

The skyway will be marked by identifying signs in many of the 5280 cities and towns along its route. It has been designated officially by the Civil Aeronautics Administration as "Skyway No. 1" at the request of the Washington Board of Trade and the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce.

The private fliers coast-to-coast highway will be equipped with direction, and information markers in the same way that trunk highways are marked for the motorist. The airmen's signs will be on building tops, water towers, barns and—in the wide open stretches—on the ground.

Divides at Abilene

Plans are for air markers to be furnished by civic and business groups in the respective towns, with the Government providing advice but no cash.

The CAA designation apparently stopped claims of Florida boosters that the Skyway No. 1 title should be reserved for a route paralelling U. S. Highway No. 1, whose southern terminus is in Miami.

T. P. Wright, CAA administrator, who issued the designation order, specified that the marking of towns for the first air highway should be within a 20-mile wide area on each side of a line connecting Los Angeles and Abilene, Tex., from where the route will split.

Flight Planned

A northern branch will pass from Abilene over Oklahoma City, St. Louis, Indianapolis, and Pittsburgh to Washington. The other branch will connect Abilene and Washington via Montgomery and Atlanta.

Wright, who commended the two sponsoring business groups on their "aeronautical progressiveness and foresight," announced that planes carrying officials of the two organizations as well as CAA representatives will leave Los Angeles on September 8. They are scheduled to arrive here over the northern route four days later. The return flight, with fewer stops scheduled is slated to leave here September 15 and reach Los Angeles the 17th, using the southern branch of the future skyway.

The Washington Board of Trade will be represented by John A. Reilly, president; P. Y. K. Howat, first vice president, and W. L. Jack Nelson, chairman of the aviation committee, who has been most active in developing plans for Skyway 1.

Reenlisted GIs Held Entitled To Job Rights

Servicemen who reenlist within 90 days after their discharge are entitled to the jobs they held before their original service when their reenlistment is completed.

This is true whether or not such veterans claim reinstatement to their jobs before reenlisting, according to Director Robert K. Salyers of the Veterans' Reemployment Rights Division, Department of Labor.

This policy, he said, is a departure from the position taken by the Selective Service system, which handled veterans' reemployment rights prior to last April 1.

Selective Service had held that a person relinquished reemployment rights on reenlisting, unless he had secured reinstatement in his former position before reenlisting.

In effect, the new policy gives veterans continued rights to their jobs if, within 90 days of discharge, they either ask for their old jobs back or reenlist. Salyers said these provisions follow an opinion by William S. Tyson, solicitor of the Department of Labor, and presumably they are subject to court decisions.

Three Arrested

Two Illegal Drug Caches Cleaned Up

Police cleaned up two illegal drug caches shortly before midnight Saturday and arrested three men who had heroin or marihuana in their possession, it was learned yesterday.

In a raid on the basement of 511 H st. nw., police found about a $1000 worth of heroin hidden in decks in an oilcloth kitchen chair cover and arrested two men.

They were Ngan Wan Wong, 49, of the H st. address, and Harry Lee, 44, of 507 H st. nw. Police said that undercover agents for the department had purchased heroin from both these men within the last few weeks.

The men were charged with violating the Harrison Narcotics Act and put under $1500 bond each. Wong made his bond but Lee is still being held.

Both men will appear today before U. S. Commissioner Needham C. Turnage for arraignment on the charge. Police said they believed that Lee was a runner for Wong.

In another raid, police arrested Maurice Carter, 24, of 67 Canal st. sw., in his room shortly before midnight Saturday. They uncovered a cache there of about one-half pound of marihuana that had not yet been sifted.

Police said their agents had made several marihuana purchases from Carter recently and that he was selling the marihuana in sticks for 50 cents each. They declared he also had been peddling marihuana on the steamship Robert E. Lee.

Carter, who gave his occupation as driver, was charged with a violation of the Marihuana Tax Act and will be arraigned before Turnage today.

Marine Flier Seeks to Better New Air Mark

A Patuxent River Naval Air Station pilot today will attempt to break the international air speed record of 640.7 miles an hour set last Wednesday by a Navy jet-propelled Skystreak, D-558.

Col. Carl

Maj. Marion E. Carl, 31-year-old Marine Corps combat veteran credited with shooting down 19 Japanese planes, will challenge the record, weather permitting, on California's Mojave Desert.

The Navy, in Los Angeles, said Carl will pilot the same Douglas-built jet which set the record last week. The plane then was flown by Navy Comdr. Turner Foster Caldwell, jr., of Arlington.

The Navy said the plane, which has not been overhauled since its record flight, will be flown from the Muroc, Calif., Army Air Base.

One of the Marine Corps top-ranking aces, Carl was engaged last year in the Navy's testing program to obtain data on carrier operation of jet planes.

In 1943, after twice receiving the Navy Cross for his combat exploits, he married Miss Edna Kirvin, a New York model.

Washington Real Estate Man Faces Jury Today

Rush to Testify As Investigation Resumes After Weekend Recess

Charles J. Rush, executive secretary of the Washington Real Estate Board, is among witnesses subpenaed to appear today before the District grand jury investigating real estate practices.

The grand jury investigation, which began last Wednesday, will be resumed following a weekend recess. Rush said his subpena called for his appearance this afternoon.

Three other real estate men also may be called today. They are Rufus S. Lusk, real estate analyst; L. E. Breuninger, head of a real estate firm; and Bert Saunders, secretary of the Michigan Association of Real Estate Boards.

Herbert Maletz, attorney in the Justice Department's antitrust division and one of those directing the investigation, declined yesterday to say how much longer the probe will continue or what witnesses will be called.

David Kramer, special assistant to the Attorney General, also is representing the Government.

The Justice Department launched the investigation suddenly, without specific announcement of its purpose. The line of questioning of early witnesses, however, indicated an attempt to show violation of antitrust laws in fixing broker commissions.

The probe soon assumed national importance as national officials of real estate associations began getting subpenas.

Montgomery Police Plan Pay Hike Drive

Support of Montgomery County civic, business, veterans', women's and other groups for higher police pay will be sought by the Montgomery County Policemen's Association, it was announced yesterday.

The county police are asking that their pay be boosted to a scale more commensurate with that of the Washington police. In announcing the drive, the policemen reject any idea of a strike, but at the same time, point to the fact that good men are being lost to the force because of the inadequate pay.

The police association has named a committee of three privates to head the civic-support campaign and to arrange for meetings with members of the board of county commissioners and other officials. The committee consists of Kenneth Miller, Lester Jones and John Higdon.

Sauter Supports Police

The policemen will find at least one supporter when they appear before the county commissioners.

Wesley I. Sauter, county commissioner in charge of police, urged better treatment for county police when the budget for the present fiscal year was made up. He was voted down by his fellow commissioners who followed the recommendation of County Supervisor Irving G. McNayr that a 10 per cent increase was adequate.

Commissioner Sauter said yesterday that the county policemen are "entitled to a more realistic salary scale."

More Policemen Favored

"Montgomery County in its entirety is guarded by only 108 policemen," he said. "We need more policemen and we need more pay for those we have.

I have been surprised by the great amount of work devolving upon the individual policeman in this county. They have to put in long hours and must be ready to answer important questions with snap judgment and this requires a high level of intelligence," Commissioner Sauter said.

County police, through their association say that Washington has a policeman for each 500 population while they perform the same duties for an average of 1600 citizens per policeman.

The captain of a county police precinct receives about the same pay as a sergeant on the Wasnington force. County police privates receive $2300 while in Washington policemen start at $2700. County captains receive $4000 a year and Washington captains $5000.

W. Va. Choir Led By Mendelssohn In Singing 'Elijah'

Arthurdale, W. Va., Aug. 24 (AP).—Several hundred music lovers motored over the West Virginia mountains today to hear the West Virginia Mountain Festival choir, under the direction of Felix Robert Mendelssohn, render a centennial singing of the oratorio "Elijah," composed by the conductor's great grand uncle.

It was the first time that Mendelssohn's oratorio was conducted in America by a Mendelssohn who was a member of the family. As the last notes faded, the 200 members of the choir received sustained applause.

National Weather Summary

Copyr., 1947, Edw. L. A. Wagner

TWENTY-FOUR-HOUR SUMMARY: Today residents of the eastern third of the U. S. will swelter under the same heat wave which has been scorching the Midwest. A warm, moist air flow off the Gulf of Mexico will send the mercury into the 90s from the Gulf States through the central Plains and the Ohio Valley to Maine. Scattered thunderstorms are expected to develop from partly cloudy skies in these eastern and southern sections of the Nation.

Coolest and most comfortable weather in the country is promised for the northern Plains and the upper Mississippi Valley. Cool air pushing down from central Canada will hold afternoon temperatures in the 70s in these sections. Maximum temperatures will be in the 80s in most of the Rockies and Far West.

Scattered thundershowers will develop in the central Mississippi Valley and over the southern Rockies. (See fotocast.)

The New Orleans weather station reported a tropical storm 20 to 30 miles southeast of Galeston at 10:45 a. m. EST Sunday. Winds of 60 to 75 miles per hour are reported near the storm center which is moving northwestward 6 to 8 miles per hour.

Fans who follow weather trends and amateur forecasters know high and low pressure cells, fronts and affected or stormy areas move eastward across the fotocast from day to day. Looking toward the weather trend for the early part of the week these amateurs will expect little or no relief for the drought area over the central Plains and the corn belt. (Note air flow around the high pressure cell over North Dakota is causing clear to partly cloudy skies and no rainfall.) This air flow should bring somewhat cooler temperatures to these scorched areas Tuesday.

Highest temperatures expected in the Nation's cities include St. Louis, 99; Cleveland, 96; Detroit and Philadelphia, 95; Buffalo, Pittsburgh, Tulsa, Albany and Nashville, 94;; Boston, Hartford and Washington, 93; Atlanta and Kansas City, 92; New York and Chicago, 88 and Milwaukee, 82.

Md. Shipleys Hold Reunion At University

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Shipley is a mighty fine name in Maryland, as the thousands of persons who bear it would be the first to tell you.

Yesterday some of the Shipleys gathered in the Ritchie Coliseum at the University of Maryland for their twenty-third annual reunion meeting and to plan for the future of their younger generations.

They were addressed by Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer, they ate fried chicken and potato salad and cakes, in the best of the Shipley traditions, and they had business sessions to discuss means of helping out the younger Shipleys coming along or yet to come.

Mrs. Henry R. Granger of Baltimore, president of the "Shipleys of Maryland," presided over the business sessions of the group, when they discussed ways of makings available to the younger Shipleys, of sponsoring forums on current subjects in Maryland counties, and of compiling service records of Shipleys who fought for their country in World War II.

The group's historical committee also discussed its work, which consists mainly in posting markers in original Shipley homes in Maryland, and in old cemeteries in the State.

From the oldest Shipley present, Miss Ida M. Shipley of Woodbine, Howard County, Md., who says she is in her eighties, down to the youngest, Patricia Lynn Shipley, 2, daughter of James W. Shipley of Harmans, Md., everyone seemed to enjoy the reunion.

All the Shipleys who belong to the "Shipleys of Maryland" contingent are descendants either of Adam Shipley or of his brother, Richard. Adam went to the Province of Maryland in 1668, entered rights to a 500-acre tract of land in 1669, married and reared five sons and to daughters.

His descendants, many of whom still live in Maryland, have numbered doctors, ministers, farmers, and even, according to the Shipley tradition, the mother of a President.

Abraham Lincoln's mother is alleged to have been a descendant of Adam Shipley.

The idea of the reunions was born in the twenties when a man driving a team of horses met with bad luck and appealed at a nearby farm house for aid. The gentleman in distress found that his name, Shipley, was also that of the farmer, Shipley. They decided then that there were hundreds of Shipleys around. It fell to H. H. Shipley to call the first reunion, which was held in a church in Carroll County.

Those who attended yesterday's reunion were pleased to learn that the VFW has purchased an old Shipley mansion in Baltimore, and that a room will be set aside there for the Shipleys to meet in. The clan will place a plaque there, and plans to raise funds for its decoration.

609 Buildings Razed to 'Age' Williamsburg

Williamsburg, Va., Aug. 24 (AP).—Six hundred nine modern buildings have been torn down here in the last 20 years to make way for the restoration of Colonial Williamsburg, B. W. Norton, vice president of the Rockefeller-financed corporation, said today.

Addressing State Chamber of Commerce officials from throughout the country at the opening session of the five-day annual meeting of the National Association of State Chambers of Commerce, Norton traced the steps taken in returning the town to its early sixteenth centry appearance.

This afternoon the visitors took a sightseeing tour of the town before a buffet supper at Williamsburg Inn.

Norton said that in addition to pulling down 609 modern buildings, the corporation has moved 19 others outside the bounds of the Colonial capital of Virginia. In their place 231 Colonial structures have been built, 24 restored and 2 blocks of business buildings constructed in keeping with architecture of the times.

As a further statistical note—given during a detailed description of work done in restoring the town—Norton said that 40 tons of ceramics, china, silver, glassware cooking utensils, wearing apparel and such have been recovered during excavations.

Always the "chief keynote" of the restoration has been accuracy, he pointed out. Research authorities have combed the archives of England, France, Spain and Italy, as well as the United States.

Va. Corn Crop Size for 1948 Being Studied

Blacksburg, Va., Aug. 24.—The size of Virginia's 1948 corn crop is being determined, in part, with detasseling of some 3000 acres of hybrid seed corn in Virginia.

Dr. C. F. Genter, Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station agronomist, said removal of the fertile, pollen-bearing tassels from seed plants was nearing completion.

Use of the tybrid seed, he said, can increase corn yields up to 20 per cent.

Several commercial companies, he said, are producing the hybrid seed from foundation stock supplied by the Seed Stock Committee of the Virginia Crop Improvement Association, other commercial firms and by crop improvement associations of other States.

Virginia plants approximately 1,200,000 acres of corn annually.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Engaged to Honest Sincere Man, Girl Wonders Whether to Inform Him Before Marriage That One Branch of Her Family Is Disreputable

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am engaged to marry a man whom you might call an "honest John." And because I, too, am honest and sincere there is something that has been troubling me ever since we got engaged.

It is simply this: Though I come from a family whose origins on both sides are very good, I have a few relatives of whom I am very much ashamed. They are people who have never tried to take their proper place in society and apparently prefer to remain on "the other side of the tracks."

They've never had the decency to try to elevate themselves and therefore haven't been too careful in selecting their friends. Also, at one time or another during their life, they have been connected with shady occupations. This skeleton has been in our closet for a very long time.

Should I let sleeping dogs lie, or should I be as honest in this matter as I have been in others and unveil the family secret to my prospective husband? If he were to discover it later, after we were married, he might be very disappointed in me. Your advice will be much appreciated. S. L.

Girl's Outlook Needs Revision

DEAR S. L.: You need to develop loftier perspective on these socially obscure unfortunate relatives who are mired on "the wrong side of the tracks" in a general atmosphere of disrepute. If you can do that, your fancied problem will fade away, never to bother you again.

Your present state of mind about them—as of lepers hidden in the bosom of the family—is neither rational nor Christian. That's why it is giving you trouble.

Your branch of the family is to be commended, of course, for trying to rise in the scale of human values and lead praiseworthy lives. And if you are making progress in this respect, it means that intrinsically you are genuinely good folk. "By their fruits ye shall know them," Scripture says.

Don't Deal in Snobbish Fears

HOWEVER, Scripture also, as in I Corinthians 13, powerfully preaches the importance to "the good life" of charity, compassion or magnanimity of spirit towards all humanity, which naturally would include any ignominious next-of-kin who might be stuck in the mud of sloth or ignorance.

"Finally, brethren," writes Paul to the Philippians, 4:8, "whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue and if there be any praise, think on these things . . . and the God of peace shall be with you."

According to Paul's inspired counsel, then, it would seem contrary to moral sense, also detrimental to character and mental health, to dwell anxiously on the snobbish speculation that possibly these wretched relatives by their very existence constitute a threat to your love-security in relation to an upright man.

Tell the Truth, Shame the Devil

THE healthy constructive attitude—which adds to spiritual stature and personal dignity, thus compelling the world's respect—is to manifest sincere charitable detachment towards errant members of your clan, if occasion arises to acknowledge them.

In conclusion, it's my opinion that you owe your prospective husband a candid inventory of the family he's marrying into;—but there is no need to hang your head when reporting the chaff along with the wheat. M. H.

Experience Is Still Best Teacher

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Every day of a child's life is a preparation for adult living. All of his experiences contribute to his success in the future as a person, as a wife, husband or parent.

Parents want the best for their children and long to see them happy, well liked and successful. They ignore the part played by responsibility. For however intelligent or skillful or popular the individual, he is warped if he lacks a sense of responsibility.

It would seem that some persons are born with it. But if the truth were known, responsibility becomes satisfying to the person because of his or her own experiences. It grows by exercise. It becomes easier as it is practiced.

Parents, with the best intentions, may assume all the responsibility themselves. They glory in being able to fulfill all the child's whims or desires. They make all decisions for him, complimenting themselves that they are wise ones. They treat a child like a baby, indulging and humoring him, long beyond the time when he should be taking his place as a responsible individual.

Even small children can make decisions. They can take some of the penalties for their mistakes and learn by them. The child who insists upon wearing her best dress to school may have to discover by bitter experience that when there is a party at the end of the week she has only her school dress to wear. It would be a shame for the parent to hurry to wash the party one, if she intends experience to teach a valuable lesson.

A young lad is buying himself a fishing pole out of money earned mowing lawns. His uncle wanted to give him the sum he lacked but his parents said no. "This is his obligation and he must fulfill it." He's going to enjoy that fishing pole far more for the sacrifices of time and energy he made to get it.

Growing children need allowances and should be expected to manage them, even if their mistakes cause them temporary heartaches. They must have some responsibility toward the orderliness of the house, toward its time schedules, toward home tasks. They should understand some of the family's economic limitations and not cry for the moon and expect to get it.

Ask Anne — Your Questions on Homemaking

Can you tell me where in Washington I can sell some second-hand street dresses, evening dresses, hats, shoes, and costume jewelry? R. D. P.

The Junior League Out Grown Shop, at 2001 Massachusetts ave. nw., may be interested in buying these articles.

I polished my bed with a commercial furniture polish which should be shined after it dries. I tried to shine it several times, but it just rubbed in and turned the bed white. I scrubbed the wood with warm water and soapsuds but it didn't help. Can you tell me how to remove it? N. E. C.

Was all the old polish or wax removed from the wood before you applied the new polish, and was the wood thoroughly dry? Moisture or old polish of another type mixing with the new polish could have caused the condition you describe. The thing to do now is to use a commercial wax remover to get off every bit of the wax and polish. Then wash with mild, lukewarm soapsuds, rinse by wiping with clear water, rub with a dry cloth, and let the wood dry out thoroughly before polishing again.

At the end of last summer my husband had a gray tropical worsted suit cleaned, and stored it immediately upon bringing it home. Because of this, he didn't discover until this summer when he got it out to wear that it had been cleaned in fluid along with another garment having a skunk odor. Is there anything that can be done to remove this odor? R. D. P.

If you haven't already done so, I'd take this problem right to the dry-cleaning establishment where the odor was received. A thorough recleaning should help remove it. There are also certain deordorant cleaners use that may be be effective. If you've moved to another town or for any reason can't return to the same shop, take to the most expert cleaner in your vicinity.

I would like to know if any of your readers can help me find a tray or any other piece to match a coffee service I bought at a second-hand store several years ago. I do not know the name of the pattern, but it features a large rose with a leaf on either side. The silver was made by the Buck Silver Co., Salamanca, N. Y., and the pattern number is 2107, in quadruple plate. Also, tell M. D. K. that I have several pieces of Black Knight china in the Clarissa pattern. J. K. A.

Can anyone help J. K. A. find the silver pieces she needs?

Anne answers letters through her column only. Write Anne, Room 408, Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

Touch of Garlic Gives Added Zest

If you like a little touch of garlic, you'll like this dressing, especially designed for use with shrimp salad:

- 2 or 3 cloves garlic
- 1 cup vinegar
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 teaspoon paprika
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 teaspoon onion juice
- 1 can condensed tomato soup
- 1½ cups salad oil

Add garlic to vinegar and let it stand 20 minutes. Remove garlic. Combine remaining ingredients in large jar or bottle. Close tightly and shake vigorously. Or make in large bowl with rotary egg beater. Shake or beat just before serving. Serve chilled.

'League of Nations' at Frances Roots' Wedding

By Marie McNair

MORE than a dozen countries were represented at the marriage of Miss Frances Blakeslee Roots, of Little Rock, Ark., and Boston, Mass., and Richard Moulton Hadden of Metuchen, N. J., which took place Saturday in Caux, Switzerland.

The ceremony was performed by the Rt. Rev. George West, Lord Bishop of Rangoon, Burma, assisted by the Rev. Alan Thornhill of Oxford, England. The bride's brother, John McCook Roots of Washington, gave his sister in marriage and taking part in the ceremony were Dr. Frank Buchman of Allentown, Pa., initiator of Moral Re-Armament, and Archdeacon Gordon Hannon of Belfast, Ireland.

The bride's father is the late Rt. Rev. Logan H. Roots, Bishop of Hankow and former Primate of China, who lived in Washington at the time of his death two years ago. Her mother, the late Mrs. Roots, was from Hartford, Conn.

The wedding gown, a beautiful white satin brocade ornamented with symbolic Chinese designs, had been sent from China especially for the occasion. The attendants dresses of rose velveteen came from Washington.

The bride and bridegroom are both well known pianists and composers. Mrs. Hadden played on the concert stage in this country and with her husband was the composer for the music sung by the Mackinac Singers of Michigan.

As a two piano team, Mr. and Mrs. Hadden recently appeared on the London stage in the performances of "The Forgotten Factor" during that play's six months run last season.

Guests at the wedding were the 1200 delegates from 15 nations at the Moral Rearmament World Assembly.

WHEN Lillian Willkey finally took off her major's uniform of the Wacs, she landed with both feet into feminine frills as a buyer for the Richmond, Va., department store.

Miss Willkey is one of the Air Forces' most distinguished nonflying veterans. In the Women's Army Corps she was on the staff of Gen. "Hap" Arnold, then chief of the Army Air Forces. Most of her work as aide was done in Washington, but once she flew to the Philippines to meet the General there and assist him at a conference.

Now that she's "in merchandise," Miss Willkey is contemplating something she never dreamed of doing when she was in the service. She's thinking of learning to fly a plane.

Newly arrived in Washington are Cept. V. S. Godfrey, OBE, former Chief of Staff, HMC Dockyard, Mrs. Godfrey and their daughter, Peggy. Captain Godfrey is the new Naval member of the Canadian Staff.

Her Imperial Highness Princess Achraf Pahlavi of Iran, a visitor here, will be guest of honor at a reception on Thursday from 6 to 9 to be given by the Charge d' Affaires of Iran and Mme. Noury-Esfandiary at the embassy.

Yesterday Senorita Hilda Vallarino, daughter of the Panama Ambassador and Senora de Vallarino, entertained about 40 young people at a barbecue supper in the embassy garden as a farewell to Teresa and Silvia Muniz.

Woman's Party To Celebrate Anniversary

District of Columbia branch of the National Woman's Party will observe the twenty-seventh anniversary of National Woman's Suffrage this week. The suffrage proclamation was made August 20, 1920, after three-fourths of the States had ratified the amendment to the Constitution and it became law.

First event of the local observance was a radio broadcast yesterday on WWDC in which Mrs. Kathryn Painter Ward, member of University of Maryland faculty, interviewed W. Clark Taylor, Washington attorney and former deputy Register of Wills.

Mr. Taylor was one of a small group of men who participated in the first big suffrage parade on the eve of President Wilson's inauguration—a parade that ended in a riot. He related some of his experiences during the early part of the struggle of American women to win the vote.

Your USED FATS ARE Still Needed!

says KATHARINE FISHER, Director of Good Housekeeping Institute

We're still not out of the woods, by any means. There is still a fat shortage all over the world. Here is what Mr. Clinton P. Anderson, Secretary of Agriculture, says about the situation: "It is still necessary to conserve every pound of used fat, since the over-all fat supply situation is little better now than it was last year." So . . . all of you women who have done such a marvelous job...please, keep up the good work. It's the only way we can beat the shortage. Remember, every pound of salvaged fat helps.

TROOPS GUARD LINE—British troops stand guard on a street dividing the Jewish city of Tel-Aviv from the Arab city of Jaffa in Palestine, following fatal Arab-Jew clashes.

IT'S A HARD LIFE—A day at the Illinois state fair at Springfield proved almost too much for these two tots. Brother is fast asleep, and from the looks of things sister will soon join him in dreamland.

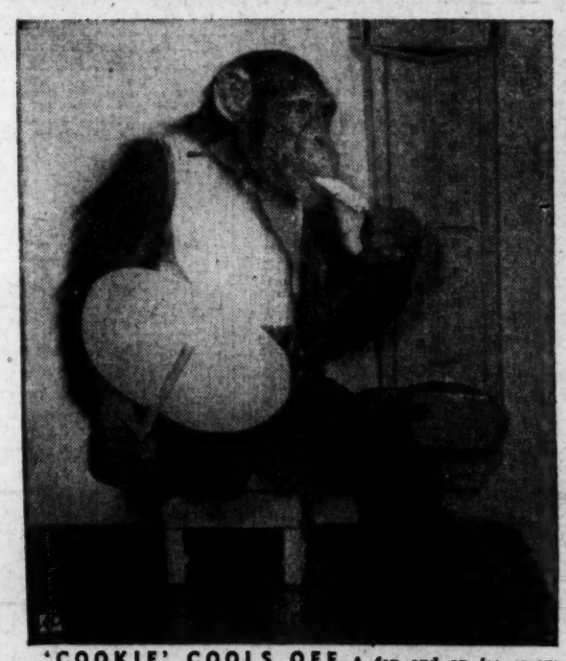
BOTTLE BABY—Paul Dittamble, attendant in the Lincoln Park zoo in Chicago, gives a helping hand with a bottle to "Butch," black bear cub who was a recent arrival.

WAR TO PEACE—A tiny vacuum tube ¾ inch in diameter and ⅝ inch long, developed during the war for Army radios and now turned to peacetime use, is held by a worker in the Sonotone plant at Elmsford, N. Y.



'COOKIE' COOLS OFF—A fan and an ice cream stick help "Cookie," star of the chimpanzee show at the St. Louis zoo, combat 100-degree temperatures in the Mound City.

WINNER—Helen Woodford, 18-year-old Los Angeles bank employe, won a movie contest and will enter pictures.

Texts on Ceiling Aid Beridden Veterans

Washington (U.P.) — Bedridden paralyzed and tubercular veterans now hold classroom sessions in their beds by studying microfilmed textbooks flashed on hospital ceilings.

The Veterans Administration which recently initiated the microfilmed textbook study program, previously had used the films only for entertainment of patients who were flat on their back. However, VA conceived the study idea and filmed 32 manuals for bedside courses. The courses include such subjects as English grammar, American government, physics, and electrical and gas refrigeration.

When a patient finishes reading a page, he pushes a button on the side of the projector and the page is "turned." When he is allowed to leave his bed, he may continue in a regular book where he stopped his microfilm studies.

Nine States Approve Highway Planning

Washington (U.P.).—Nine States enacted legislation this year calling for long-range highway planning studies, according to the National Highway Users Conference.

The conference reported that Florida and Ohio legislatures killed road planning measures during their 1947 sessions, but said highway survey's were approved by Illinois, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nebraska, Oregon, South Dakota and Washington.

California set up an interim assembly committee to investigate its road program. Mississippi and Michigan already have quasi-official groups conducting highway studies.

Washington's $100,000 appropriation was the largest granted any of the planning groups.

Wise Weather Guessing Pays Off in Tomatoes

Hastings, Nebr. (U.P.)—On the morning of May 27 Art Alberding studied the sky and called his family into action in the tomato patch.

The Alberdings pulled 1600 tomato plants set out two weeks before and put them in the basement. Before the day was over, an inch of snow covered the ground and the temperature was considerably below freezing.

The next day the sun was hot and the snow was gone. Alberding and his family replanted the 1600 tomato plans.

The Alberdings reported the first ripe tomatoes of the season this summer.

Arctic Fossils Turn Up In Michigan Peat Bog

Chicago (U.P.).—A newly-discovered scientist's paradise, a peat bog near Buchanan, Mich., has come to light. The bog contains fossils representing plants usually found only in the transcontinental tundra belt extending through northern Canada, Alaska, and the Artic islands.

The accepted theory is that tundra vegetation has been displaced by the movement of the glaciers which retreated from the area 20,000 to 25,000 years ago, but scientists have not determined how these plants managed to survive the hostile climatic conditions of the new area.

Professor Max E. Britton, specialist in plant ecology at Northwestern University, hopes to determine the environment factors that permitted the tundra vegetation to persist so far south of its original habitat.

Harrisburg Challenges Portland on Roses

Harrisburg, Pa. (U.P.).—Harrisburg wants to become the "Rose City of the United States" and some of its leading horticulturists are shaping strategy by which they hope to take the title away from Portland, Ore.

Mrs. Carey O. Miller, chairman of a Garden Club committee for the promotion of the Rose City idea, said her group is conducting a count of the city's rose bushes and she predicts the census will show "two roses grow in Harrisburg to every one in Portland."

The committee is looking for a Rose City slogan to back up its claim to the title, something to beat Portland's "A Rose for You in Portland Grows." The best three entries will be awarded money prizes.

Raymond Massey Tries New England Farming

Ipswich, Mass. (U.P.).—Raymond Massey, screen actor, has decided to become a New England farmer.

Massey has bought the 2000-acre J. B. Thomas estate—once a North Shore showplace—which includes a 25-room house, cottages and barns.

When remodeling is completed, Massey says, he plans to do some real farming.

Problem Globe

New York (U.P.).—An enormous copper-covered globe which had hung from the dome of the administration building at La Guardia Field was ordered down for safety reasons. Once it reached the floor, however, workmen found it was too big to go through the building's doors. They parked it near a staircase while they tried to think of a plan to get it out.

Shower Made Practical

Waukesha, Wis. (U.P.).—When the new baby arrives at the William Hagenau home, the event will be celebrated by a baby bed shower. The idea was fostered by a neighbor who thought it would be a good idea for friends to chip in and buy a bed which was really needed rather than the usual miscellaneous shower.

State Buys and Buys

Olympia, Wash. (U.P.).—Washington citizens went on the greatest buying spree in the history of the State during the first six months of 1947. State tax collection figures were 22 per cent above last year's period and set a new all-time record of $55,871,609.72.

ADVANCE SHOWING

Shortly after Labor Day one of the fine homes of Chevy Chase, Md., will be placed on the market for the first time, but by knowing the family rather well this office can show the house by appointment in advance of the display publicity. Built by the present owners on about ½ acre plot, this lovely brick Colonial, center-hall residence affords a generous conventional first floor, 3 bedrooms and 2 baths on the second floor and another bedroom, den and bath on the insulated third floor. Appointments and equipment are of top quality and complete, and the home in every way reflects the thoughtfulness and good judgment of the occupants. The grounds are exceptionally well landscaped and lay to afford privacy, yet the location provides quick access to churches, schools, shopping center and downtown transportation. Buyers in the 40 thousand dollar bracket have an opportunity to inspect this lovely place without the pressure that extensive advertising creates.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

An Officer and a Gentleman

Mrs. W. M. W. of Silver Spring, Md., asks that we refrain from identifying her too closely, because she doesn't want her Sunday School class to think she makes a habit of breaking the law.

Mrs. W. was out driving when a motorcycle cop waved her to a stop and asked:

"Do you have any children, lady?"

"Yes, I do."

"Don't you know that speeding causes many accidents in which children are hurt? You were doing 45."

"I'm sorry," answered Mrs. W. honestly, "I didn't realize I was going that fast."

The policeman nauled out his citation book and fountain pen, and would have written a ticket —except that the pen was bone dry.

So Mrs. W. opened her purse and said, "Here. Use mine."

John Law pondered the offer for a few moments, and then shook his head and smiled.

"Nope—I can't do it. I'm not going to borrow your pen to write you a ticket, so you get off this time. But hereafter keep your eye on that speedometer, lady."

LOCAL BOY MAKES GOOD

The news columns recently reported that Carleton W. Meyer had been appointed assistant to the president of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway.

As usual, the stories listed Meyer's previous history and achievements, tracing his rise through the Delaware & Hudson Railroad, the American Bus Lines, the New York Central Railroad, etc.

But in this column we identify folks in a different way. Carleton Meyer was graduated from McKinley Tech, and his father is Balthasar H. Meyer of 3327 P st. nw.

PET PEEVE

Try as I will, I can't understand the practice of promiscuously jamming ice into every liquid but soup.

The other day I dropped into the Hot Shoppe in Shirlington. Its appointments are gleaming new; every modern convenience is at the service of the diner.

I noted approvingly that the water tap ran from a mechanical cooler.

"Ahhhh," I thought. "Maybe I'll get a glass of cold water that isn't packed with ice."

But I was wrong. Into the glass of refrigerated water the waitress shoveled enough ice to start an igloo.

To satisfy my curiosity, I asked for another glass of water —without ice. It was just as cold.

PERSONAL NOTE

Here's an explanation for those of you who called a wrong number Saturday to try to get the German shepherd puppy:

My desk and files were moved from the second to the third floor last week. The moving men tipped them on end, shuffling the contents into a glorious mess.

Through an unfortunate mixup, the wrong item got into the paper. Please forgive me for the inconvenience I've caused all around.

COINCIDENCE

Ellen lost a social security card and Ellen found a social security card. Same card, but two different Ellens.

The loser is Ellen Amelia Walrath, who used to work for HOLC. The finder is Ellen Arnwine of 2007 I st. nw.

CAMPAIGN PROMISE

Arlington County Treasurer John Lock Green will run for reelection this fall, and will be opposed by George P. Grove, Arlington attorney.

Green was rather startled the other day when the mailman brought him a campaign card from Grove. There was the usual picture on one side and biographical material on the other.

But on the picture side, Grove had drawn a cartoonist's "balloon" to indicate that he was saying something. Inside the balloon was the message:

"Get the office painted up for me, John."

Jolson Quips About His Years

New York—AGE: Al Jolson tells of taking his bride on an auto drive along the West Coast. They had to stop for oil at a gas station in a tiny village. During the stopoff Mrs. Jolson walked up the road to stretch her legs . . . "Your daughter is a very pretty girl, sir," said the attendant to Jolson . . . "My daughter?" said Jolson, pointing to his 21-year-old bride. "She's not my daughter. Don't you realize that I'm much too old to have a daughter as young as that? She's my wife."

HONESTY: His ex-Excellency, Paul Porter, had a discussion on American honesty with his OPA predecessor, Chester Bowles. "I would say," said Bowles, "that the American businessman is 95 per cent honest. Yes, 95 per cent honest" . . . "I disagree with you," said Porter. "I would say that the American businessman is 100 per cent honest—95 per cent of the time."

GREETING: When Porter went to Greece as the President's special Ambassador, he decided to learn some Greek phrases, common phrases of greeting, farewell and acknowledgment of introductions. His interpreter taught him the first word, and Porter said: "No, that's too tough, I give up. I'll just speak English all the time" . . . "No, it's quite simple," the interpreter pleaded. "Just remember the name of the man who was Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce back home in Winchester, Ky.—F. Harry Smith. Just say it quickly, 'F. Harry Smith,' and it's close enough to the Greek salutation" . . . When Porter met the Prime Minister he smiled his biggest Kentucky smile, extended his hand and greeted: "Harry F. Smith."

FEE: Deems Taylor went to the Copacabana to listen to Lena Horne. When the show ended Taylor received a note from the headwaiter. He read it, and seemed puzzled. "It's from Jackie Eigen, who does a disc-jockey show from the bar upstairs," the headwaiter explained. "He'd like you to stop at his table for a short interview over the radio" . . . "Tell him I'll do it," said Taylor, "if he'll call me by my nickname—'No-Check' Taylor."

CHANGE: The convention leaders of both political parties will arrange the telecasting of the '48 conventions, and for the Presidential candidates to do some of their campaigning over television stations. This was predicted by the late Al Smith shortly before his death. "The time soon will come," said Smith, "when a presidential candidate will not have to leave his office to campaign, but will be seen and heard by the people via television. And to think that when I was a candidate for Sheriff I made 31 speeches in different parts of the city in one week."

CHATTER: Sidney Bernstein, the British theater-chain owner who has been in Hollywood these past weeks working on an independent film production deal in partnership with Alfred Hitchcock, flew back to England last night. Bernstein was called back by his government for consultation on the British-American movie war . . . Dorothy Thompson is completing a novel tentatively called "Portrait of a Christian." It's about her father . . . Hamilton Basso is writing a profile of Eugene O'Neil for the New Yorker . . . Leon Henderson may represent the Independent Film Producers Association in its Washington conference on the current film-trade crisis . . . Sinclair Lewis is leaving for Minnesota to finish his new book.

Portraits

By James J. Metcalfe

Typesetter

He sets the type to print the words . . . That say the things we mean . . . And does his duty skilfully . . . By hand or by machine . . . Of course there are occasions when . . . The metal wears and breaks . . . Or when he dreams a little and . . . He makes a few mistakes . . . But usually he has the touch . . . Of wisdom and of age . . . That changes scribbled copy to . . . The perfect printed page . . . His job is not to edit or . . . Revise a single word . . . No matter what he knows himself . . . Or what he may have heard . . . But just to pick the proper type . . . And pass it to the press . . . To tell the world a tale of woe . . . Or one of happiness.

A GREAT STORE IN THE NATION'S CAPITAL

Mrs. Stanley C. Hedstrom . . . music teacher from St. Paul . . . formerly business manager of East St. Paul American Legion Auxiliary Glee Club, State and National champion . . . past PTA State Music Chairman . . . serving first term as president of Minnesota State Society.

THE HECHT COMPANY SALUTES THE CITIZENS OF WASHINGTON WHOSE HOMES ARE IN

MINNESOTA . . . the north star state

Minnesota, the North Star State, is truly a shining star among the States of our Union . . . shining for her agricultural and mineral production . . . the excellence of her transportation facilities . . . the talents and accomplishments of her people . . . and for her natural beauty. Her myriad streams and lakes reflect the azure skys and mirror the luxuriant growth of green forests . . . We invite you to spend a vacation with us, to share in our enjoyment of the beauty of our state . . . and the unusual opportunities for hunting and fishing. Minnesota is a leader in the country in the conservation of game . . . with an ample supply of deer and bear for the big game hunter . . . and our many lakes and rivers are kept well stocked with trout and other game fish. Minnesota's "fair haired" sons and daughters' star in many fields . . . many of the country's brightest literary figures of the past two decades have been Minnesotans . . . among them F. Scott Fitzgerald and Sinclair Lewis. We point with pride to the tremendous strides in medical research and alleviation of human suffering made at the internationally known Mayo Clinic at Rochester, Minnesota. Although Minnesota has been a State only since 1858, in that short space of time she has achieved a leading position in the Nation in many branches of agricultural and industrial production . . . and, of course, is in a class by herself in the mining of iron ore . . . The Twin Cities, Minneapolis and St. Paul, constitute the largest Metropolitan center for the Northwest. We Minnesotans who are working here in Washington are justifiably proud of our home State . . . and the achievements and talents of her people . . . which we hope can be turned to the uses of a world at peace through all the years to come. The Hecht Company is very kind to give us this space to tell of the accomplishments—and the aspirations—of Minnesota.

Mrs. Stanley C. Hedstrom
President, Minnesota State Society

MINNESOTA . . . Land of the Sky Blue Waters . . . purportedly seen by Viking explorers over 100 years before Columbus set foot on American soil . . . as evidenced by the Kensington Runestone, unearthed near Alexandria, Minnesota . . . inscribed with Norse characters and bearing the date 1362.

MINNESOTA . . . Cool vacation paradise . . . with the finest canoe waters on the continent . . . lake fishing . . . and big game hunting . . . for the still plentiful deer, bear, and fur animals . . . and the only herd of wild caribou in the United States. The St. Paul Winter Carnival highlights the winter sport season . . . with a holiday parade of giant figures modeled after the legendary lumberjack, Paul Bunyan.

MINNESOTA . . . Geographical center of North America . . . with the Northwest Angle jutting up into Canada farther North than any other point in the United States. The headwaters of rivers flowing North to Hudson Bay and East to the Atlantic Ocean are in Minnesota . . . as well as the source of the Mississippi River, Itasca Lake.

MINNESOTA . . . Great agricultural area . . . first in growing oats and making butter . . . second in milk and eggs . . . high in corn, wheat, barley and rye. Minnesota is noted for the large Minneapolis flour mills and its extensive grain storage bin capacity. St. Paul is a leader in stockyards capacity . . . and has one of the largest publishers of law books in the world and one of the largest refrigerator manufacturers. St. Paul is high also in manufacture of advertising specialties.

MINNESOTA . . . World's greatest source of iron ore . . . taken from the Mesabi, Cuyuna and Vermillion ranges . . . which produce over 60 per cent of all iron mined in America . . . Minnesota has the largest open pit mine in the world.

MINNESOTA . . . A transportation center for America and the world . . . Duluth is the world's largest inland port, second only to New York in annual gross shipping tonnage . . . and the Twin Cities are a hub of air travel to the Orient . . . with passenger, mail and express service direct to Tokyo.

MINNESOTA . . . With James J. Hill, builder of railroads . . . Dr. Jean Picard, noted stratosphere balloonist . . . Authors F. Scott Fitzgerald, Margaret Culkin Banning, Sinclair Lewis, Martha Ostenso and Eric Severeid . . . Dr. William Mayo and his sons, founders of the Mayo Clinic . . . Painter Adolph Dehn . . . and Architect Cass Gilbert . . . on the long roster of distinguished citizens.

MINNESOTA . . . Proud of its well equipped public schools in the Northeastern iron mining towns . . . and the largest State University on one campus, the University of Minnesota.
